Taft Explains Crime Law Defects

RESTRICTIONS IN STATUTES POINTED OUT

Powers of Judges Curbed, Declares Chief Justice Of U. S. Supreme Court AT HIS SUMMER HOME

POINTE AU PIC, Murray Bay, Que., Aug. 23.—Defects in administration of American criminal law were explained in an exclusive interview with the United Press by William Howard Taft, chief justice of the U. S. supreme court, as due chiefly to:

Weakness of judges' powers by restrictive state statutes.
Lack of sufficient expenditures properly to detect and prosecute criminals.
Lack of organization of the judicial force so as to mass an adequate number of judges where business or prosecution is congested.

Not Beyond Remedy
But the defects, he held, are not beyond remedy and he took an optimistic view as to the future of American disposition of crime cases. He expressed delight at America's awakening to the situation involved in lax administration of crime laws.

He predicted that the American people, "when they realize the grand total of destruction of life and property, due to the failure on the part of legislatures to make provision, financial and otherwise, for adequate police, for adequate detection of crime and adequate machinery for prosecuting, will make the legislators responsible and will insist on the organization of the courts, on prosecutions and executive detection of crime that shall bring about what we ought to have in that regard."

He expressed himself further as not greatly alarmed at the element of "maudlin sentimentality" that caused crowds to cheer criminals and send them roses. Such persons, he said, belong, "to the lunatic fringe of society."

Overlooking St. Lawrence
The chief justice, America's only living ex-president, appeared outwardly in excellent health and splendid spirits, though overwork and exertion have impaired his health of late and cause him to avoid unduly heavy tasks. But his recuperation is proceeding apace in the crystal air of the upper St. Lawrence, laden with the tang of salt and pines, and he is occupied part of the day with preparations for the fall term of the court.

It is only a slightly different Mr. Taft from the one the writer knew before the war. Some of the waist line has disappeared, but his face and his carriage belie the 60th birthday that he will celebrate here with his family and friends next month. Moreover, there is the same infectious smile the nation knew so well in his White House years, the same charm of personality that has won him the love and respect of his own countrymen and the admiration of his neighbors in this Canadian colony where, for 25 of the last 35 summers, Mr. Taft and his kin have made their summer home.

Fire Burns in Grate
The chief justice was sitting in his study in the beautiful cottage nestled back from the road among the pines. A cheery fire burned in the grate to take off the chill of the near-autumn temperature.

We went out to the sunny porch. There two of his 10 grandchildren played and greeted him with a cheery "Goodbye, Grandpa; we're off."

"Off for where?" asked the chief justice, smilingly.

"We're going to England," they answered as they scampered down toward the edge of the river that runs out to the sea—and England.

Seated on the porch, the chief justice spoke of his health, his pleasant associations in this region and then the talk veered to questions close to his present sphere of activity, chief justice of the nation's highest court.

"I am delighted," he said, "to note that the attention of the public is directed to the defects in the administration of our criminal laws."

Protected by Bill of Rights
"The prosecution of persons accused of crime is properly surrounded by what is called in the state constitutions and in the federal constitution a bill of rights."

ARRANGEMENTS had of course to be made in advance, as would be the case anywhere, and possibly they would not have been easy to make for the mere casual curiosity-seeker, though they were simple enough if there was a reason for them. But, once the whole proceeding was simpler and less formal than even in the White House in Washington. There were fewer policemen, many fewer secretaries and attendants visible, and much less atmosphere of oppressive deference to the supposed importance of the occasion. We were ushered into an ante-room, and in a few moments into the office of the President, where was the familiar face and figure of von Hindenburg, standing alone, with his favorite police dog, a beautiful animal, by his side.

GENERAL von Hindenburg, "in civil," looks softer, less stern, less lined, and actually younger than his war pictures. He was dressed in a dark gray, double-breasted sack coat, without ribbons or decorations. He stands stiff and erect, as is natural to one who was fifty years a general in the old German army, and he is reserved, dignified and cautious, but not arrogant or overbearing in his manner. He speaks the quick precise, decisive German of the old military class, but without the affectations common before the war among the younger officers in Berlin. There is, of course, none of that gracious composure so manifest in the Kaiser, but there is a sense of granite strength and dignified self-possession. There is also a sense of perennial youth. President von Hindenburg must be within a year or two of eighty, but he has the bearing, alertness and reserve strength of an uncommonly sound man of fifty. There was also, in his every utterance, a sense of realistic facts and practical action, without either optimism, pessimism or speculation. If you seek the two extreme types of man, take Hamlet and Hindenburg.

IT IS perhaps not strange to carry away a pleasant impression from personal contact with this iron man whose unbending will for four years stood off a world in arms. The whole world, without that contact, has gained the same impression, ever since it recovered from the shock of Hindenburg's election to the Presidency. The psychology is simple. Hindenburg is a man in whom unswerving loyalty to duty outweighs all other motives. When it was his job to serve the Kaiser and fight the war, he did both unquestionably and ruthlessly. When it became his job to defend the republic and represent the people, he did it, even though it involved stamping the heavy heel on some of the very elements that had elected him to office. To the simple processes of Hindenburg's mind, there is only one thing to do, and he does it. That has enabled him to impose his sturdy common sense on a discordant Reichstag and a nervous-shattered people.

Compare Ludendorff and Hindenburg. During the war we supposed Ludendorff furnished the brains and Hindenburg the "front." Possibly Ludendorff may still have the more hair-trigger brain. But, by the tests of everything that has happened since the war, Ludendorff, with all his ability, lacks common sense, while Hindenburg, with all his stolidity, was able to provide common sense for a whole nation, plus the force to make them act on it.

KILLS WAITRESS; TAKES OWN LIFE

SAN JOSE, Aug. 23.—After killing Miss Susie Ellis, a waitress in the restaurant of which he was proprietor, William Wallace committed suicide yesterday on a street car filled with churchgoers. Patrons, finding the restaurant deserted, discovered the girl's body about the same time Wallace killed himself.

Members of his family believed his act was due to temporary insanity, resulting from brooding over the death, four years ago, of his only son.

DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT DIES; LONG LEADER IN EDUCATION

Former Harvard University President Expires at Age of 92 Years

(By United Press)
NORTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Aug. 23.—Charles W. Eliot, 92, president emeritus of Harvard university and for 60 years a leader in American educational affairs, died here Sunday.

Dr. Eliot was president of Harvard university for 40 years and was one of the most influential men in the country not holding public office.

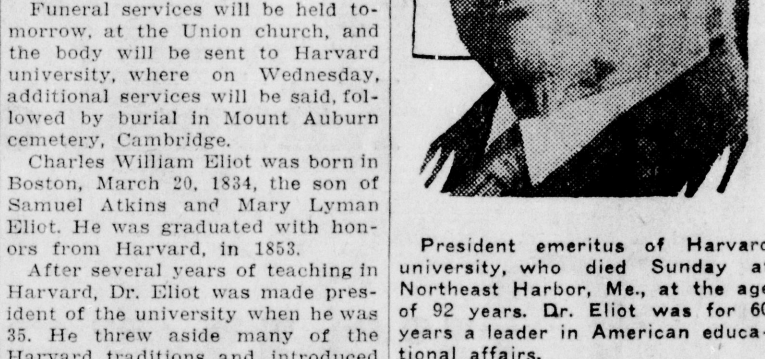

Funeral services will be held tomorrow, at the Union church, and the body will be sent to Harvard university, where on Wednesday, additional services will be said, followed by burial in Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge.

Charles William Eliot was born in Boston, March 20, 1834, the son of Samuel Atkins and Mary Lyman Eliot. He was graduated with honors from Harvard, in 1853.

After several years of teaching in Harvard, Dr. Eliot was made president of the university when he was 35. He threw aside many of the Harvard traditions and introduced the lecture system in place of recitations and favored written tests instead of oral examinations. He also abolished compulsory religious worship.

His influence outside the university continued to extend. Politically, he was a staunch supporter of the League of Nations. Dr. Eliot was offered the post of ambassador to Great Britain, under Taft, but declined.

Until his 90th year, he worked every day at his desk.

NEW REGIME IN GREECE SET UP BY INSURGENTS

Coudouritis Becomes President After Overthrow Of Pangalos Rule

(By United Press)
ATHENS, Aug. 23.—Adm. Paul Coudouritis has accepted the presidency of Greece, after a successful revolution, in which the army and navy, under the leadership of Gen. Georges Condylis, overthrew the Pangalos government.

Arriving in Athens last night, Coudouritis, who had been ousted from the presidency in the revolt which raised Pangalos to power, received the following message from Condylis:

"I have the honor to inform you with emotion that the armed forces have abolished the evil tyranny which has been existing. I offer respect to the legitimate president of the republic and pray that you will assume the supreme magistracy which you held so worthily and so gloriously, for so long a time and by the will of the people."

Condylis announced that Salonika had recognized the new government.

Pangalos, who had controlled Greece for 15 months, was taken prisoner and isolated in the military hospital at Athens.

He had been spending a vacation at the island of Spatsae, when Condylis, former minister of the interior, flew to the island to place him under arrest. Pangalos escaped, however, fleeing on a destroyer, on which he had come to the island. He was pursued by the vessel, manned by revolutionary forces, and his ship surrendered rather than face a battle.

Gurnea today declined to take any action on an application for the release on bail of Henry Carpenter and Willie Stevens, held in Somerset county jail on charges of murder in connection with the deaths, four years ago, of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills. The chief justice explained that he had received a letter from Justice Charles W. Parker, now on vacation in Maine, saying he was prepared to return and hear argument in the bail application.

BOY DESPERADO IS EXPECTED TO DIE
PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 23.—Leslie Gonce, 14-year-old desperado, who was shot and wounded by arresting officers here last week, spent a restless night, according to attendants at the Park View hospital, today.

With four bullet wounds in his body, physicians have held little hope for the boy's life.

The youth was shot following several weeks of outlaw acts by him and his brother.

MARYSVILLE, Calif., Aug. 23.—A man, claiming to be the "dark stranger," murdered of six middle-aged landladies in California, gave himself up to police here today.

He gave the name of Raymond Escobar, son of a pioneer Spanish family, of Monterey. He told police in rambling, incoherent words that he was unbalanced and feared that he might do injury to someone. He was placed in a cell, while police, undecided whether to credit his "admissions," communicated with San Francisco detectives.

They said he talked, in a general way, with the measurements generally accepted as those of the "dark stranger."

VISIONS SEEN OF PEACE IN CHURCH WAR

Compromise Looms in Battle Between Mexico Government and Catholics
THREE COURSES OPEN
Beginning of Fourth Week Of Struggle Finds Situation Hopeful of Solution

(By United Press)
MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23.—Catholic Mexico today had visions of peace and compromise in the struggle between the church and state, which has entered its fourth week, with the opposing forces at last having reached the point of conference. But so far the positions of the disputants remain unchanged.

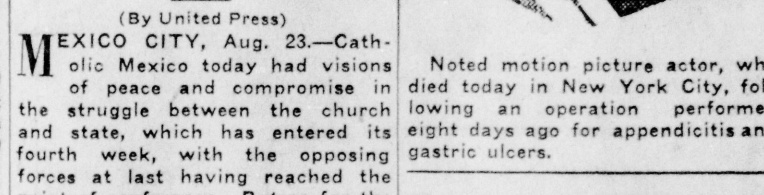

The government's victory has been firmly established to date, and for that reason President Calles was able to receive the church's preliminary advances for elimination of some of the alleged misconceptions, pending the result of the bishops' campaign for legal relief from what they describe as anti-religious laws.

Three courses were open to the church today:

- 1.—To seek a court injunction against the application of the objectionable law.
- 2.—An appeal to congress for amendment of the constitution.
- 3.—To permit the registration of priests as required by the newly promulgated law.

Appeals to congress or the courts are not likely to gain the desired relief, as both those branches of the government probably would sustain the executive's policy.

Nevertheless, the beginning of the fourth week of the struggle found Mexico more hopeful than ever before of ultimate solution of her great problem.

POLA NEGRI IN COLLAPSE WHEN TOLD OF DEATH

Reported Fiancee of Valentino Is Overcome by Grief at Passing

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 23.—Completely overcome by the death of Rudolph Valentino, Pola Negri went into retirement with friends at noon today, without issuing a statement.

(By United Press)
HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 23.—Pola Negri collapsed in her bungalow at the Ambassador hotel today, when informed of the death of Rudolph Valentino.

Prostrated with grief, the Polish star swooned without a word of comment when informed by her personal maid that the great screen lover, her reported fiance, had succumbed.

The house physician at the Ambassador rushed to Miss Negri's bungalow and the star's personal doctors were summoned also.

At 10 a. m., Miss Negri was still in a state of "nervous hysteria," according to physicians, who said it would be at least two hours before anyone would be allowed to interview her.

Three physicians attended the star.

Hollywood in Mourning
Hollywood plunged in deep mourning today when word was flashed from New York that Rudolph Valentino, one of her favorite sons, was dead.

Flags on all studios were lowered to half mast, and a sombre mood pervaded the film capital.

All production was suspended at the United Artists studio, under whose banner the Valentino pictures were produced.

Production was stopped also at the Famous Players Lasky plant, where Pola Negri, Valentino's reported fiance, had been working double time the last week in her latest photoplay, in an effort to complete the role and hasten to the actor's bedside.

Actors Leave Studios
Picturesque columns of stars and extras, in costume and make-up, were seen filing out of the studio gates. Dismissed for the day, they went to their homes to mourn the passing of "Rudy," the most famous of the screen lovers.

Not since the death of "Wally" Reid, four years ago, has Hollywood been so stunned with grief. All night long, after Valentino was first reported sinking, his friends have watched the wire reports for latest news from the dying sheik's bedside.

It was difficult to realize that "Rudy" was dead. Not many weeks ago he was one of the most active of the movie idols.

The screen lover's favorite pastime was to don greasy overalls and completely dismantle his two foreign-made cars. He was a first-class mechanic and was credited with devising several improvements on foreign carburetors.

Arises at 6 a. m.
Between pictures, Valentino arose very early, around 6 a. m., every morning, went through an hour of strenuous exercise, breakfasted, and appeared at the studio for story conference, leaving at noon and returning to his mechanical work in his garage until 6.

Then he dined out, usually with some close friends, and often startled hostesses by leaving early.

Miss Cannon abandoned the icy waters of the channel at 10:50 p. m., two hours and forty minutes after she had entered the water.

He is survived by his brothers and mother.

WITH 4 DOCTORS AT SIDE, FAMOUS SHEIK OF MOVIES DIES IN GOTHAM HOSPITAL

From Italian Immigrant to Pinnacle of Fame on Screen Is Remarkable Career of Famous Actor

WALL OF HEART IS POISONED

(By United Press)
NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Rudolph Valentino, who came to this country as an emigrant gardener and rose to the heights of fame as an actor, died at the Polyclinic hospital, here, today.

Humbly born, the son of a farmer in Italy, he died with four skilled physicians at his bedside and with the country waiting each word from his sick room almost as it waits for a word from the sick room of a president. Death came at 12:10 p. m.

The actor was 31 years old. He was born May 5, 1895.

Dr. Harold Meeker, one of the attending physicians, who was with the actor throughout the night and morning, said he believed the last conscious words were spoken at 3:30 a. m.

LAST WORDS OF FISHING
At that time, Valentino, still thinking he was to recover from an operation of appendicitis and gastric ulcers, spoke of the days he would spend in recuperation and asked the doctor about trout fishing.

"Do you have plenty of rods and hooks?" the actor asked Dr. Meeker.

At 4 a. m., Valentino became irrational and talked mostly in Italian. Two hours later, he was semi-conscious and lapsed into a coma at 8. From then on, he occasionally opened his eyes when his name was called. He died without pain. The cause of death, in medical parlance was "septic pneumonia and septic endocarditis."

POISONING OF HEART WALL
The corps of physicians then ordered an X-ray. It was found that the pleurisy, which brought about a relapse Saturday, when Valentino seemed on the road to recovery, had been followed by septicoendocarditis (poisoning of the wall of the heart).

The last official bulletin was issued shortly before noon, when it was admitted that the actor was "rapidly falling."

His temperature had mounted to 105. His pulse was hammering at the rate of 140 strokes to the minute. His respiration was 30 to the minute.

In a few moments, the actor was dead.

The operation was performed a week ago Sunday. Valentino had been in New York, in connection with the release of one of his pictures, "The Son of the Sheik." He had attended several parties and was in a gay mood most of the week preceding his illness.

After he had been stricken by acute appendicitis, he was taken to the hospital.

The ulcerous condition was said to be more of a menace to his health than the appendicitis.

OPERATION THOUGHT SUCCESSFUL
At first it was believed the operation had been completely successful. On Tuesday, it was known that peritonitis had developed, but physicians said it was localized.

The hospital, meanwhile, was besieged by personal and telephone calls from thousands of those whose hours had been made happier by Valentino's screen appearance.

Once there was a report of his death, and extra girls were assigned to telephone duty at the Polyclinic.

"Mr. Valentino is alive and his condition is the same," intoned the operators to the callers and a gasp of relief followed.

Father Congodo administered the last rites of the Catholic church to the dying man shortly after 10 a. m., today. Just before Valentino died, Father Bennon, of the Church of St. Malachi, known as the actors' church, in Forty-ninth street, arrived in the sick room.

SCHENCK ANNOUNCES DEATH
Joseph M. Schenck announced Valentino's death. He came downstairs at 12:15 and read the brief bulletin signed by Drs. Paul E. Durham, G. Randolph Manning and Howard D. Meeker.

The relapse came Saturday. Valentino still showed a remarkable constitution and physicians took hope from his courage. However, the disease traveled slowly but certainly toward the heart and death could not be denied.

After news of his death came today, the telephone girls were immediately besieged once more.

By Thursday of last week, Valentino was in better spirit and hopes were high that his recovery would be complete. He even consented to an interview with the United Press, through George Ullman, his personal manager.

Valentino had lost consciousness shortly before the end.

BODY TAKEN TO MORGUE
The body was removed to the Campbell undertaking parlors, at 1970 Broadway, this afternoon.

By the time the body was removed from the hospital to the undertaking parlors, a crowd of 750 to 1000 persons had gathered around the main entrance of the hospital.

The body was removed by a side entrance, however, where an additional crowd of 250 was watching. It was carried by undertaker's assistants. Across the top of the wicker basket containing the body was a large gold cross.

Plans for burial will be in the hands of Joseph Schenck, head of United Artists' corporation, which was to release Valentino's forthcoming pictures. Schenck and Ullman were at the bedside when death came and both were prostrated. Later they cabled Valentino's brother, Alberto, and sister, Maria, in Italy.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO'S OWN STORY OF HIS LIFE

The Sheik

The Lover

The Horseman

The Athlete

Came to America As Prodigal Son; Found Fame After Tribulations

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is Rudolph Valentino's own story of his life. The famous film star wrote it for NEA Service and The Register shortly before he became seriously ill in New York. It is presented here as an absorbing, straight-forward story. Just as Valentino wrote it, his career was one of the most unusual in screen history.

By RUDOLPH VALENTINO
(Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

In my early studio days I once tried to sell the story of my life as a scenario. It was rejected as being "too wild and improbable." To have one's life thus characterized by a company which specializes in the most frantic serials was rather disconcerting.

Now as I try to view my own historical record with detachment I can see clearly what the scenario editor meant. The hero of my tale is not at all consistent, like a movie hero. In fact, I am not sure that he is the hero. At times he has all the appearance of "the villain."

Yet again, he seems to have good impulses, which a movie villain never has. Nor does my life run true to dramatic form. It should mount in a straight line to a climax. Instead of that it bounds, like a kangaroo.

His Real Name
I was born in the little village of Castellana, Italy, May 6, 1895, and was shortly thereafter christened Rodolpho Alfonso Raffaello Pierre Filibert Guglielmi di Valentina d'Antonguilla.

Can you imagine how that would look in electric lights in front of a theater? My real surname is Guglielmi. My mother was the daughter of a learned Parisian doctor and my father, in his youth, was a captain of Italian cavalry.

When I was 11 years old, my father died and I was sent off to Dante Alighieri college, which corresponds to a high school in this country. I finished the course at 18 and then went to a military school. But I was more interested in romantic novels than I was in my studies, so the authorities sent me home.

My mother was heartbroken and I was truly contrite because of her suffering. I determined to do better for her sake and enrolled in the Royal Academy of Agriculture to learn to be a scientific farmer. I was graduated with the highest honors in my class, much to the gratification of my mother.

Following this accomplishment, I again slipped from grace and went off to Paris and Monte Carlo to see the world. After all my money was gone, I returned home a prodigal son.

My family decided that I was apt to disgrace them and that it were better that I be shipped far, far away. So my mother scraped together $4000 to finance my voyage to America, where I was to seek fame and fortune.

In New York
I arrived in New York just two days before Christmas, Dec. 23, 1913. The new land was very strange to me and I was very lonely. In order to find companionship I frequented the cafes. This took all my money, but I did learn to dance, which was to be beneficial to me later.

When my funds were all gone I got a job as superintendent of the Long Island estate of Cornelius Elias Jr. This lasted only a short while, as I showed an irresponsible nature and was courteously dismissed.

My next "position" was as an apprentice landscape gardener in Central park, New York City. After a month of this, I went to the civil service bureau to get a regular job, but found I was not eligible because I was not a citizen.

I had no job and no funds. I was forced from one lodging to another. I went hungry and slept in Central park. One hot summer day, I walked five miles to the city hall looking for work. Unable to get it, I walked back.

After doing any little odd jobs that I could get, I finally went to the head waiter at Maxim's and got employment as a dancer. This was really the start of my professional career, for I later obtained dancing engagements with Bonnie Glass and Joan Sawyer.

But I didn't want to be a dancer. Still dreaming of using my education as an agriculturist, I joined a musical comedy company, headed for the Pacific coast with the hope that California might offer something. The troupe stranded in San Francisco and I was again without a job. I tried selling bonds, but without success.

At this point, Norman Kerry, whom I had known in the east, suggested that I try motion pictures. Norman paid my expenses while I made the rounds of the studios.

No one hailed me as an actor. In fact, it was a long time before I could get even extra work. I knocked about from pillar to post playing villains and small parts until June Mathis selected me to play Julio in "The Four Horsemen."

This was followed by another Rex Ingram picture, "The Conquering Power," and by Nazimova's "Camille." Then came the picture that "made" me—"The Sheik." It was "The Sheik" that made me a star.

and retiring before midnight.

His romance with Pola Negri was at first only amusing to Hollywood.

But later Hollywood wished them well, hoping against hope that the Polish star's high-strung temperament would not result in a grand crash.

Pola and Rudy were called the most devoted couple in movieland, and they were seen together at many Hollywood parties and in public cafes.

Wanted to Sit Together

Each insisted always on being placed side by side at all Hollywood dinner parties. No matter who the host or hostess, Rudy always quietly asked that his place be moved next to Pola, and the request was always granted.

At the table, amused guests often peeped under the table cloth and found that Pola and Rudy were holding hands. It was broadly cast generally that the famous couple would be married, although various rumors were circulated that little quarrels after the parties would soon break the engagement.

Miss Negri had avowed her love for the great Latin lover, and their marriage was tentatively set for next spring, according to close friends.

During his illness, she had been on the verge of a breakdown, and she posed for the final scenes of her latest pictures with real tears in her eyes.

Tribute Paid Valentino
High tribute was paid to the memory of Rudolph Valentino by his former associates in the film industry.

Rajah, "Blood and Sand," "Monsieur Beaulieu" and "The Sacred Devil."

I then transferred to the United Artists' corporation and made "The Eagle." My latest picture, "The Son of the Sheik," is a sequel to the earlier desert picture.

Industry in expressions of sympathy and regret.

B. P. Schulberg, associate producer at the Famous Players-Lasky studio, where Valentino made some of his greatest pictures, said:

"No greater tragedy has clouded the film colony than the passing of Rudolph Valentino. As a former member of this organization, he was loved by all. I, with my co-workers, express the deepest sorrow and regret."

Other expressions of sorrow were as follows:

Jack Holt: "News of the passing of Valentino has struck me like a thunderbolt. Nothing in many years has caused me greater grief."

One of Screen's Greatest

Wallace Beery: "Without a doubt, he was one of the greatest artists of the screen. His passing will be mourned throughout the world with profound regret."

Florence Vidor: "I and millions of other admirers am bowed down with sorrow. He will stand out to me as one of the most gallant and truly chivalrous members of the film colony."

Bebe Daniels: "The loss of a true friend and a great artist leaves one with the helpless feeling of inexpressible remorse. The screen and its followers will never forget him."

George Fitzmaurice, who directed Valentino in "Son of a Sheik," his last picture, said:

"He was one of the finest gentlemen as well as one of the most finished character actors I have ever directed. Rudy knew everyone in his company from the cameraman to the prop man. He could call them each by name. His consideration won him the respect and admiration of all of us. In his death I have lost a friend."

Biggest Loss to Industry
Clarence Brown, another former director of Valentino, said:

"Valentino's loss is the biggest loss the industry has ever had. Not only a great artist, he was also an was a terrific loss to the screen. He brought to it happiness, beauty and art as perhaps no other has. His loss can never be filled."

Marion Davies: "The news of Rudolph Valentino's death came as such a shock that I cannot yet believe it. I feel that with his passing the screen has lost a great actor and his associates have lost a great friend."

TAFT EXPLAINS SHORTCOMINGS OF CRIME LAW

and those guarantees are nothing but what came from the bill of rights, and the other great liberty-protecting statutes of England and which are still in force in England quite as fully as they are here.

"And yet no one complains that the criminal laws of England are not most satisfactorily enforced; that crime is not detected; or that criminals are not punished, and that the innocent are not protected."

"Now why is that so there and not here?"

"Well, of course, there should be a premise that we have a very different set of criminals to deal with and we have problems growing out of our 'melting pot' that a population like that of England—homogeneous—doesn't present."

Law-Abiding Britishers

"The law-abiding impulse of the English people is most remarkable and it was manifested in the late strike to a degree that is noteworthy in the history of peoples, for it controlled, not only the public at large, but also the strikers themselves, so that, in that tense situation, there was not a single act of any disorder resulting in death."

"That couldn't have happened in our congested population, so many of non-native races that are not imbued with that respect for law that is possible among a homogeneous people."

Obstacles in Prosecution

"So it is that the machinery for the arrest and prosecution of criminals is confronted with obstacles in the character of the peoples themselves that no other country has. But notwithstanding those difficulties, the administration of the criminal law might be greatly improved."

"In the first place, in many jurisdictions—I mean among the states—the judges of the courts in the trial of criminal cases have had their powers weakened by restrictive statutes. In the matter of charging the jury and helping the jury to understand what the issue is before them; in the conduct of the trial generally, and in winnowing out from the evidence the irrelevant and unsubstantial, so that the jury may gain a sense of proportion as to the value and weight of evidence, many of the courts are so restricted that a judge at a trial does not amount to more than a moderator at a religious conference."

Law Imposes Restrictions

"These restrictions are imposed by statute and they dictate a certain method of abuse of power, but a lamentable failure etc. appreciate what is necessary to give to judges the function that they may exercise reasonable assistance to the jury in reaching a sound conclusion without in any way taking away from the jury its right to be the ultimate judge of the facts in the case."

"Now, in the federal courts, the judges have the same power that the English judges have, but in many state courts it has been taken away. And the jury system, as it is administered in such courts, is not the English common law system at all, and it greatly weakens the probability of the conviction of criminals that war on society."

The chief justice paused meditatively and chuckled good naturedly before continuing:

"It's a curious result in those communities where the weakened power of the judge exists. The people first take away the power and then they criticize the judges for not conducting courts in which crimes are punished. Some official in the court has to be trusted and don't get that the system of the English law, where the judge is trusted, has vindicated itself in the administration of English justice."

Correct Abuse of Power

"More than that, an abuse of power by the judge, under our system of review, is easily corrected by the appellate court."

"Secondly, there is need in many places of more judges to do the criminal work; and then, even when the judges are sufficient in number, there is no supervising authority to distribute the mfrom one district to another so as to mass the judicial force to overcome congestion of business in heavier districts."

Thirdly, there is not enough money spent; there is not sufficient organization of the detecting and prosecuting machinery. There is not, through the country districts, certainly, enough constables or policemen."

"And it also is true that, in many congested districts where crime is excessive, the sympathy of the neighborhood is too often effective to obstruct the procuring of evidence and the thorough prosecution of persons reasonably suspected of crime. I am not a pessimist, however, with respect to conditions in general or with respect to the character of governing capacity of the American people."

Difficulties in Optimism

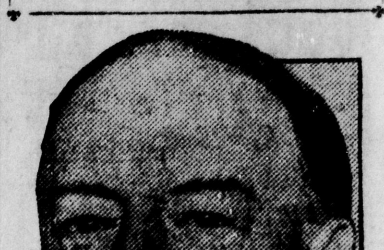

"Their difficulty is in their optimism; their narrowing attention to the thing immediately in hand and their disposition when everything is going with them fairly well to say that George will attend to the rest."

"But what I am very hopeful of is that, when they realize the grand total of destruction of life and property, due to the failure on the part of legislators to make provision, financial and otherwise, adequate police, for adequate protection of crime and adequate machinery for prosecution, they will make the legislators responsible, and will insist on the organization of courts, of prosecutions and of adequate detective of crime that shall bring about what we ought to have in that regard."

WILLIAM H. TAFT

Chief justice of U. S. supreme court, who today gave out an interview dealing with the legal phases of the crime situation in the United States.

The learning required at the Royal Academy proved more useful. The youth was engaged as superintendent on the Long Island estate of Cornelius Blis Jr. Later, he became apprentice landscaper in Central park, New York, but lost that post through ramifications of the civil service.

SWEEPS OUT STORES

After that, for a while, it was a question of any job to sustain life. He shined brass, swept out stores, stood behind counters. All the while, he tried to gain employment as a dancer and one day the head waiter at Maxims' engaged him in that role.

There was a Latin fire and grace about his dancing that the guests at Maxims' liked. With Joan Sawyer as his partner, he enjoyed a measure of success.

But Rodolpho was restless. The farm was still deep within him, and somewhere he had heard of the agricultural possibilities of California. A little musical comedy heading for the coast needed another man, and with his surname changed to Valentino, he became that name.

EXTRA IN MOVIES

The young farming was short-lived and Valentino went south to Los Angeles. He tramped from movie studio to movie studio, becoming an extra at $5 a day.

He had that vague prerequisite, "possibilities." June Mathis selected him to play the lead in "The Four Horsemen." It was a long shot, but the movies were made on such.

Valentino gained a hold that could not be shaken. Women raved over his looks. Men sometimes sneered at the young Italian's handsomeness; at other times they secretly admitted that he was attractive.

Pictures followed in quick succession with Valentino in the leading role. Then came the epochal "Sheik," in which Valentino acted a role created by an imaginative English woman, whose book, crammed with sex, was sold in this country wherever gum was chewed.

Probably no actor ever reached the amount of "fan mail" that followed release of "The Sheik."

MARITAL DIFFICULTIES

Valentino's marital affairs frequently have been before the public. In November, 1919, he was married to Jean Acker, screen actress. The marriage was stormy and in 1922 an interlocutory divorce decree was granted her.

Less than a year later, Valentino married Winifred DeVolve, adopted daughter of Richard Hudnut, perfume manufacturer at Mexico, Mex. The young husband was arrested and charged with violation of the court decree that forbade his remarriage within a year. This charge was later dropped and a second ceremony was performed March 15, 1923.

The second matrimonial venture proved no more successful than the first. Mrs. Valentino, under the name of Natacha Rambova, wanted a screen career to herself, while Valentino was equally insistent as to woman's place being at the home.

Accordingly, they agreed to a divorce and a full decree was granted his wife in Paris this year.

'MISS X' MAY BE L. A. GRAND JURY WITNESS

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—"Miss X," the mysterious woman who shared a cottage at Carmel with Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator for Alvin Karpis, may appear before the Los Angeles county grand jury tomorrow.

A woman, who said she was Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman, of San Francisco, announced here that her sister was "Miss X," and that both women would go before the grand jury and reveal the truth about the Carmel incident.

Mrs. Wiseman said she also occupied the cottage at Carmel, and that she was the woman introduced by Ormiston as his wife.

"Mrs. George McIntyre," she said she was telling the "true story" to free Mrs. McPherson from suspicion.

"I only knew Ormiston as George McIntyre at the time, and I understood he was going to marry my sister," said Mrs. Wiseman.

"My sister was ill at the cottage and it was I who was introduced as Ormiston's wife."

"I am the one they have been searching for as 'Miss X.' But it was my sister who was Ormiston's companion."

Mrs. Wiseman has been a guest at Angelus temple for several days. It was learned. Photographs of herself and Mrs. McPherson, showing a striking resemblance, have been published in local papers.

MAYOR CROOKE'S PROCLAMATION:—

Whereas, Orange county has need to develop in new lines in order to maintain prosperity, and

Whereas, there are two important matters on which the united support of all citizens is necessary to carry into effect, and

Whereas, these two major projects are: Conservation of water supply and the development of Newport bay as a practical and useful harbor, and

Whereas, the plans for harbor improvement have been well studied, endorsement of responsible engineers given and same are now ready to be acted upon by the people of Orange county, further the cost of improvement is small, for the life of the bonds, 20 years, approximately only six cents per three hundred dollars worth of actual property, that the benefits which will follow will be county-wide and in brief time will more than repay the cost of the improvement, and

Whereas, it is only by co-operation, and in unity of purpose, that we as a county can progress, and as it soon will be necessary to call upon all the county to support a water conservation program, for which the share bill of the county will carry its cost, but at present has little need for further water development.

Now, therefore, on behalf of the citizens of Fullerton, I urge that all unite in helping to carry to successful issue the harbor bond election called for June 10 and that we assure our friends and neighbors in the coast line cities that we are heartily in favor of the project as outlined and will give same our wholehearted support, thereby confirming the claim that Fullerton and northern Orange county is blessed with a county-wide vision and is ready at all times to endorse by word and action all measures which are of county-wide benefit, and in recognition and appreciation for the ready help always extended by the coast cities of Orange county to the interior cities as expressed in their quick response when efforts were made to locate the Southern Branch of the University of California near Fullerton.

This proclamation issued and signed this 23rd day of June, 1926, by the undersigned, in the sole interest of the future development of Orange county and the city of Fullerton.

HARRY H. CROOKE,
Mayor, City of Fullerton.

Santa Ana Township

Resident Orange County

Resident Santa Ana 20 years

I believe in the enforcement of all laws so long as they remain on the Statute Books.
I do not believe in fixed schedules of punishment. Each case should be considered according to evidence and circumstances and judgment rendered accordingly.
I believe the people are entitled to the benefit of the SMALL CLAIMS COURT (Poor Man's Court). It is the law and should be applied and enforced equally with other laws.
Santa Ana Justice's Court is one of the busiest Justice's Courts in the State, handling large numbers of civil and criminal cases, practically all civil cases involving amounts up to $300.00, all misdemeanor criminal cases, and preliminary examination in all felony cases. The same questions of fact and law arise in the Superior Court and to decide these cases justly, requires the same degree of skill and legal training as in the Superior Court.
I am the only LAWYER candidate for this position. I am a Graduate of the University of Southern California and of the U. S. C. College of Law. Have practiced law in Santa Ana 14 years.
I have no criticism to make of the character or integrity of my opponents, but I believe that by reason of education, training and experience I am better qualified for the position.

FIREWORKS AT PROTEST MEET ARE EXPECTED

Fireworks were predicted today about the city hall for tonight's meeting of the city council, when formal action will be taken on protests against the proposed widening of South Main street.

Up to noon today not less than four different protests, carrying close to 130 signatures and representing a total frontage of 3227 feet, had been filed with the city clerk and were being checked up in the city engineer's office.

Speculation centered itself today on the attitude of the council members. In some quarters, the belief was entertained that the city fathers will overrule the protests by a four-fifths if not unanimous vote. Others ventured the opinion that the trustees will defer to the wishes expressed by the property owners and abandon the proceedings.

A record crowd, including practically every property owner on South Main street, is expected for the meeting. It was added that in addition to their written protests, the objecting property owners will present oral arguments against the proposed improvement project.

Our Neighbors

GLENDAL—The city tax rate for Glendale for the coming year represents an advance over that of last year, the difference amounting to 26 cents in some districts and 27 cents in others. The tax rate for this year runs from $1.29 to $1.31 per $100 of assessed valuation, as compared with $1.03 to $1.05 for last year. The higher rate for the coming year is declared by City Controller H. C. Saulsbury to be due to the interest and sinking fund on the sewer bond issue, loss of revenue from traffic violation fines, the cost of the new library and the increase in the personnel of the fire and police department and advances in salaries.

SAN BERNARDINO—San Bernardino's bank clearings for the week ending Thursday were 21.8 per cent higher than those of the same week in 1925. The total was $2,293,143.07, as compared with $1,793,331. There have been very few weeks this year which have not had higher clearing totals than the corresponding weeks of the past year, according to the records in the clearing house. The increasing clearing totals, local bankers state, reflect the improving business conditions and increasing wealth and population of the city more accurately than any other source.

EL CENTRO—That El Centro has almost doubled its population since 1920 is shown in a report issued today. This city had a population of 9393 in 1925. In 1920, the figure was 5464. With the population of almost 10,000 El Centro is the largest city in Imperial county. Brawley is next with 6967. Calexico's population in 1925, is estimated at 6347; Imperial, 2819; Holtville, 1547; Calipatria 973. California leads all other cities in the valley in value of property owned by municipalities with a total of $660,814.20. El Centro is second with $443,500. Brawley's municipal property is valued at $368,000. Holtville at $189,400, Imperial, $152,000, Calipatria, $8421.

VENTURA—The "red tape" of organization of the new Union National bank is rapidly being unwound, it has been reported by the organizers, and the bank will be $250,000 divided into 2000 shares, which are rapidly being subscribed for. The organizers have placed a limit on the amount that will be allotted to each subscriber with the idea of distributing the stock throughout the county.

LONG BEACH—The city council's proposed emergency ordinance designed to halt temporarily all oil drilling activities in the east end of the city, and which was ordered drawn by the council several days ago, was defeated by that legislative body last week, when it failed to muster the necessary number of votes. Following its defeat, the council directed that a comprehensive zoning scheme aimed to protect the highly developed park and residential districts of the east end, be formulated at once by the city planning commission. Although Mrs. J. W. Lowther, chairman of the commission, is out of the city, it was said today that three members of the official body may join in a call for a special meeting to begin at once the work of drawing up the new zoning plan.

King Is Not Making Factional Fight

REDLAND, Aug. 22.—As author of the King tax bill, and as executive committee man for several years for Southern California for the progressive wing of the Republican party, demand is heard everywhere for the acceptance of Senator Lyman M. King as the candidate of Republicans of progressive faith, for lieutenant governor. The Los Angeles Record, strongly progressive and supporting Young for governor, voices acknowledgement of King as the only candidate in the race with any progressive record. King, however, declines to be drawn into any fight between factions of the party, and says that, if elected, he will work to harmonize them, with a policy of constructive, worth-while legislation, headed by his program for revision of the state tax plan.

MOTOR OFFICER INJURED WHEN CYCLE CRASHES

Frank Vaughn, state traffic officer, working out of Costa Mesa, was seriously injured at 7 o'clock last night, when he was knocked from his motorcycle by an automobile said to have been driven by Charles M. O'Connor, 39, painter, 1639 Van Horn avenue, Los Angeles. The accident took place on the Newport highway, near Paulerino.

Vaughn was taken to the Orange County hospital, where it was said that he was suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg above the knee, a broken left arm, near the wrist, a dislocated finger and serious cuts and bruises about the body.

A specialist was brought to the hospital early today from Los Angeles to set the broken bones. Vaughn's injuries, although serious, are not expected to prove fatal. O'Connor was arrested by State Officers Hurd and Barnhill, three hours after the accident, when he walked into the city police station to report the accident. He is booked in the county jail for violation of the motor vehicle act and on suspicion of a felony.

In the meantime, officers are investigating to determine whether O'Connor stopped to render aid.

Historic Castle Is Now for Sale

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Emma Calve is advertising her castle home for sale. The advertisements describe it as the historic castle of Cabrières, in the Cevennes mountains, 2000 feet above the sea level, with garage, grounds, gardens, vineyard and a farm of 300 acres. The price is 2,000,000 francs or something like $60,000 at the recent exchange. The chateau is about eight miles from the town of Millau and 16 hours by train from Paris.

Police News

Eugene Griset, Route No. 4, Santa Ana, reported to police last night the theft of his automobile from a place where it was parked near the First Presbyterian church.

Burglars attempted to enter the home of S. A. Winkle, 701 South Sycamore street, Saturday night, but apparently were frightened away before gaining entrance. A screen over a rear door was cut, as was one over a front window, but there was no indication that the house had been entered. Members of the Winkle family were away from home at the time.

Charged with vagrancy, LeRoy Hinkle, 18, was arrested last night by city officers. He was later released to his parents.

Charged with speeding 50 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone, J. G. Glascock, 915 Redford Drive, Beverly Hills, was arrested on the Coast boulevard yesterday by Officers Aldrich and Stinson.

H. L. Wagner, 1779 Lewis avenue, Long Beach, faces a jail sentence Friday, when he is scheduled to appear in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court on a charge of driving 53 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone. He was arrested on the Coast highway between Huntington Beach and Newport Beach.

William Duncan, 51, 512 East Walnut street, was arrested Saturday night by Officers Elliott and Adams on a charge of possession of intoxicating liquor. He is in the county jail and probably will be brought before Judge J. F. Talbot, in police court, today.

To spend five days in the county jail on a speeding charge, Lester L. Michael, 33, 2599 West Pico street, Los Angeles, was admitted to the jail Saturday night. He was convicted Friday in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court.

C. A. Vaniman, 27, 209 Temple street, Long Beach, entered the county jail Saturday night to spend five days, after being found guilty of speeding 50 miles an hour over Orange county roads last week, by Justice Kenneth Morrison. He will be released tomorrow.

Two Indians, B. Galland and Reginald Casara, were arrested near Irvine Saturday night by deputy sheriffs on drunk charges. The men were lying in an irrigation ditch when officers found them, it was said. Because of their condition, officers said they did not learn the names until today.

JUDGE TELLS OF JUVENILE COURT OBJECT

The objects of juvenile court are corrective, not punitive. Its aim is to reclaim youth, not condemn it.

This is the view of Superior Judge Homer G. Ames, who presides over the juvenile court of Orange county.

Since his appointment to the bench last May, Judge Ames has made a serious study of juvenile court problems and the cases that come under his observation. Today he discussed the attitude of the juvenile court toward the youthful offenders brought before it. At the same time he delineated his ideas regarding probation.

"In my opinion," he said, "probation is designed only for juvenile offenders and first offenses of a minor nature. 'The adult person, with full possession of faculties, commits a serious crime, is not entitled to probation,' declared Judge Ames.

"Of course," he continued, "a rigid rule cannot be laid down for all cases. Circumstances sometimes alter them. But that is the general rule. That represents the attitude of my court toward probation." The juvenile court, however, is inclined to be lenient with youthful law violators, where probation will break the ends of the court—correction rather than punishment, said Judge Ames.

"Where the offender is young and his offense is not of a serious nature, such as a crime of violence against the person or the home, he is deserving of probation," he stated. "There is the further consideration of whether the offender seems to be of criminal bent, even as regards minor offenses. If he is, he should not have probation. But the main object of juvenile court is corrective rather than punitive and when there is a chance to reclaim the youthful offender as a good citizen we take that chance."

Racing With Cop Dangerous Sport, L. A. Youth Finds

Earle Louis Seegar, 1028 Kings-ton street, Los Angeles, picked out a traffic officer's automobile to race with and he not only lost the race, but found himself in possession of a ticket charging reckless driving. State Traffic Officers Aldrich and Stinson were driving along the coast boulevard, when Seegar, with another youth and two girls in his machine, drove up and stopped and then repeated the stopping so many times that the officers attempted to go around him. When they did, Seegar is alleged to have dashed away at a high rate of speed. He was caught and given a ticket. "Come on, play fair," Seegar is alleged to have told Aldrich after he had been stopped. "I'm not playing at all. I'm working," the traffic officer answered.

THREE ARRESTED ON BOOZE COUNTS

Ralph Poling, 23, truck driver residing near Anaheim, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Frank Vaughn, state traffic officer, who booked him at the county jail on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Two companions, O. M. Jenkins, 33, box maker, of Fullerton, and C. H. West, 20, Fullerton, also were arrested and are charged with being drunk.

They are scheduled to appear today before Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison.

The men were arrested on the Newport highway, near Costa Mesa.

SCIENTIST MAKES SUGAR FROM WOOD

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The Soviet sugar may soon be sweetening Britain's afternoon tea. Dr. W. R. Ormandy told the congress of chemists in London that a process of winning sugar from sawdust has now been developed to a stage where he believes it has commercial possibilities.

In one experiment 65 pounds of sugar was obtained from 100 pounds of dry sawdust. At present, 25 per cent of the timber cut in the world is wasted in sawdust, Dr. Ormandy said.

State Vice-President Of Legion Auxiliary

GERTRUDE FULLER WHITNEY, DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. F. W. FULLER, 2125 NORTH BROADWAY, WHO WAS ELECTED SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT AT THE AMERICAN LEGION AND AUXILIARY DEPARTMENT CONVENTION, CONCLUDED FRIDAY AT SUSANVILLE.

Reaching home yesterday from their attendance at the eighth annual department convention of the American Legion and Auxiliary at Susanville, Santa Ana auxiliary delegates were jubilant over the election to the second vice-presidency, of their vivacious and capable former president, Gertrude Fuller Whitney, now of San Bernardino.

The presidency of the state organization went to Mrs. Elizabeth Drendell of San Francisco while Mrs. Ethel Hirst of Los Angeles was named first vice-president.

Another honor accruing to Mrs. Whitney was that of being named as alternate to the national convention, scheduled for October and to be held in Philadelphia, the Sesqui-Centennial city.

Mrs. Whitney was met upon her return by her husband, Clyde Whitney, formerly with the Orange County Title company but now with the Security Title Insurance company of San Bernardino. They were guests yesterday at the Fuller home on North Broadway.

Mrs. Whitney's election to office was a gratifying recognition of her activity in the organization. For the past year she has not only been secretary of the San Bernardino auxiliary but has held the important state office of chairman of the membership committee. The splendid increase in membership has been largely due to her untiring efforts. During her activities in the Santa Ana unit, Mrs. Whitney was adjutant of the local post of the Legion.

Among members of the Santa Ana auxiliary who were present at the convention to offer their support to their former leader, were Mrs. C. W. Nussbaumer, Mrs. Mark Todd, Mrs. Nora McCalla, Mrs. Rose Polz, Mrs. Elmer Schaniel, Mrs. Sue Tucker, Miss Clarice Cummings, Miss Nora Lykke and Mrs. James Utt. Mrs. Nussbaumer and Mrs. Todd made the trip by automobile, accompanying their husbands, but the other members of the party went up by train and came home by boat, stopping at San Francisco for a short stay and reaching Los Angeles harbor last night.

"My Favorite Flower"

Once more has the query as to one's favorite flower, been answered in rhyme, for Mrs. Kate C. Ebel, of Tustin, a frequent contributor to the Register, attracted by the question, tells her preference in flowing verse.

My Favorite Flower
When memory's pages have been backward rolled,
My childhood's home, I once again
behold,
A hallowed spot, where in the early spring,
All nature seemed to pour her offering
Of lovely flowers, fair lilies, lilacs too,
The sweet narcissus, and the violets blue.

But dearer, brighter, lovelier than them all,
Were tulip cups that bloomed beside the wall.
So cheerful were their colors, yellow,
pink and red,
While all around a faint perfume
they shed.
They were the first to come up from the ground,
E'en though the snow lay glistening
all around.

Beneath the mold, wrapped in a dreamless sleep—
Long months the nut brown bulbs
lay buried deep,
Waiting the time to burst their narrow tomb.
To fill the garden with their gorgeous bloom.
Then came at last their resurrection day,
When binding fetters all were torn away.

So I would choose this flower above the rest,
It calls forth thoughts the holiest,
and best,
The brilliant cups of rich and radiant hues
Serve to dispel and drive away the "blues"
Coming to us when days are dull and drear—
The very first to tell us—Spring is here!

Double Shower Given To Honor Brides in Double Wedding

WHEN invitations were issued for the double wedding of Miss Velma Mahaffey and Russell Myers and Miss Grace Ozment and Orville Taylor, friends of the two young brides-to-be decided that a double shower was in order. Accordingly, arrangements were made with Miss Mahaffey's family for the use of the home at 1027 South Main street, thus assuring a more complete surprise to both of the girls. When the two couples drove to the Mahaffey home late Saturday evening to perfect details for the wedding, they found their friends waiting for them. In their absence, the house had been beautifully decorated with baskets of roses and numerous dainty bride dolls, the work of Miss Olga Perenich.

A tag man soon called with two bags of "rags" which he had been instructed to leave at the home. The bags proved to be filled with lovely gifts for the new homes of the two honorees. Before the two girls had time to finish opening their gifts, a number of young men, intimate friends of the two couples, came in to spend the rest of the evening.

After each of the brides-elect had cut her "wedding cake" containing the proverbial ring and thimble, refreshments of molded ices, cake and heart-shaped candies were served on trays. The dainty hand-painted nut cups were the work of Miss Cynthia Kirven.

Those present, besides the honorees and their fiancés, included the Misses Elizabeth Martin, Mabel Ozment, Zelma Hayward, Frances Donan, Helen Fraser, Hazel Taylor, Cynthia Kirven, Mary Maude Cadle, Mary Jo Anderson, Edna Backs, Cora Lee Ritter, Meta Backs, Dolle Denhart, Evelyn Ketchum, Lola Mahaffey, Fay Mahaffey, Iva Hallman, Mary Hopkins, Clara Mae Humphrey, Olga Perenich, Thelma Davis, Mrs. John Hansen, Mrs. T. By this, I do not mean color is passe—certainly not. But an orgy of color, such as we have witnessed for the past year, invariably ushers in a decided feeling for black and white.

Pleasant Evening Is Devoted to Bridge In Grandy Home

RS. Jean Grandy assisted by Miss Anne Keane, was hostess at a very delightful bridge party one evening late last week, at their home, 203 East Tenth street, where asters in various delicate hues were utilized for the artistic decorations.

At the close of the interesting series of games, for which three tables were required, the prizes were captured by Mrs. Alice King, first, and Mrs. Alice Johnson, consolation.

Late in the evening the hostesses served ice cream, cake and coffee to their guests, those participating in the pleasant event including the Misses Jean Stroheck, Leona Harrington, Mary Arbuckle, Alberta Rogers, Ruby King, Mrs. J. H. Hest, M. Hart, Catherine Walker, Opal Dodd, Agnes Lieberman, Helen Whitten, and Mesdames Anna Hooker, Alice King, Alice Johnson and A. Marshall.

Young People Wed In Riverside

Riverside was chosen by Miss Terra Garver and W. H. McGowan, as the scene of the 7:15 wedding which took place in the Mission Inn city Saturday, August 21.

The young people have returned to this city and will make their home at 217 South Main street. Mr. McGowan is foreman of the Nash garage while his bride is an employee of the Southern Counties Gas company.

Beach Electric Car Is Switched Off Main Track

What appears to have been a deliberate attempt was made last evening to wreck the 7:15 west-bound Seal Beach-Long Beach electric car. The car crashed through the gates of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric corporation's power plant enclosure, but remained on the track despite the sharp curve. A bruised elbow, suffered by the motorman, was the only injury reported.

Seal Beach is the eastern terminus of the line and while the car was making its turn here, a man, accompanied by a small boy, turned the switch immediately in front of the P. A. Stanton home, on Ocean avenue.

Stanton, who was sitting on his front porch, saw the man at the switch, but supposed him to be an employee of the railroad company. Just a few minutes later the car approached and, leaving the main line, crashed through the gates into the power plant enclosure.

Fashion's Pendulum Swings Surely to Black and White

The rising tide of color has reached its peak and the logical result is that if you want to be distinctive you will forsake the excited reds and emphatic greens and come back to black and white. For evening, white and black is the correct formula—the body of the frock in white, and the black introduced as an accent.

For day, black and white is the correct order, and I prophesy that one of your desires in the way of a fall costume will materialize in a black satin or crepe, with collars and cuffs, or vest or bertha of white.

Trend Is Reaction
By this, I do not mean color is passe—certainly not. But an orgy of color, such as we have witnessed for the past year, invariably ushers in a decided feeling for black and white.

White evening clothes have always been popular with New York women—more so, I believe, than with European women, or women in the other cities of our own country.

At any gathering of social importance in New York, white is usually the choice of the majority of the well-dressed women. But there is a sameness about the all-white frock which makes many women avoid it.

But when you add black, with just the right subtlety, you achieve an individuality as well as an elegance that no other combination can give.

Photographed today are three imports which I consider ideal for late summer evening gowns, all in the white and black combination.

Youthful and picturesque, indeed, is the model of white chiffon with the skirt and irregular bertha of chantilly lace as fine as a cobweb.

As a change from the sleeveless frock, an elbow sleeve is achieved by the lace crepe—and the effect of sheer lace over a satiny skin is too flattering to be overlooked.

Another very attractive feature is the girlish which is very near to the normal waistline and is loosely tied with ends that extend below the hemline.

A heavier crepe lace is used on the white flat silk model with sleeveless coat of the lace that falls in a straight line from shoulder to hem. The very short skirt is given even a shorter appearance by the wide lace flounce and the low wide belt which ties snugly enough about the hips to give the smart silhouette.

Here again, the lace forms a sleeve effect, and softens the lines of the bodice in the most delightfully feminine fashion.

A pleasing variation of the black and white mode is shown in the fringed model, which is a charming dance frock. The bodice is of silver Elizabeth crepe, interestingly tucked and joined to a skirt of silver lace fringe over black net.

Black and white flowers at the shoulder are a very Parisienne touch.

Always remember that black and white call for very careful make-up, and perfect grooming. All imperfections are more visible against a white background than a colorful one, and likewise, all points of loveliness are heightened and accentuated.

Entertaining Program At I. O. O. F. Hall

A very delightful musical and literary program was enjoyed following a recent brief business meeting of Santa Ana lodge, No. 236, L.O.O.F. held in Odd Fellows hall, with about 400 members and their families and friends present.

Ben H. Baker, vice grand, was chairman for the evening's program, assisted by Harold Smith. The Odd Fellows' orchestra, composed of six pieces, played several enjoyable numbers and a brass quartet from the municipal band added to the pleasure of the evening.

Hershel Clayton, accompanied by Harry Warner on the piano, and Miss Georgia Bell Walton, popular little violinist, acquitted herself in her usual excellent manner.

Trombone solos played by D. C. Cianfoni were appreciated and Miss Helen Hull put vim into the program with her graceful spotlight dances, accompanied by Lynn Crawford. Miss Charlene Lowell made a hit with her audience in her readings and at the close of the program, the audience was served with refreshing fruitade.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Ruth Grubbs of Columbia, Kas., left yesterday for her home following a visit at the home of her brother, Henry J. Hawkins, 902 Fairview street. Mrs. Grubbs was a resident of Santa Ana fifteen or sixteen years ago.

The finance committee of the city council of Orange has secured the services of W. I. Stewart, of the well-known firm of Stewart, Taylor and Walker of Santa Ana, to audit the books of the city.

New residents of Santa Ana are Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rosser of Orange, who have lately moved to 338 East Washington street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rogers and daughter, Carol Faye, 1406 South Van Ness street, returned last night from a delightful three weeks' tour of the northwest, going as far as Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Neiman, 1001 North Broadway, were home today from a six weeks' motor trip to the northwest. The Santa Anans visited many points of interest in Oregon, Washington and Canada. They also passed several days with their son and family in San Francisco.

A Tested Recipe

With Santa Ana markets offering the finest of mid-summer "roasting ears," housewives might try varying their offering of sweet-corn by serving corn mock oysters to their hungry families. These are particularly good when served with fried chicken and help to make a typical southern dinner. However, they form a pleasing luncheon dish unaccompanied by fowl or other meats.

Six ears of corn are required with two eggs, one-half cup of sweet milk, one teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, rolled cracker crumbs.

Cut through the center of each row of kernels with the point of a sharp knife. Scrape down with blunt edge of knife to remove pulp. Beat eggs until light and add the milk. Add corn, salt and pepper and enough cracker crumbs to make a "drop" batter. Drop from tip of spoon into deep hot fat and fry for four minutes. Drain on brown paper and serve.

If more convenient, the "oysters" may be pan-fried (sauteed) in a frying pan in a mixture of half butter and half lard. Brown first on one side, then turn and brown on other.

Old-time "Fiddler" Does Kindly Act

Her tedious days as a shut-in were given a happy variety recently for Mrs. Julia A. Garrison, prominent in W. R. C. and kindred circles, when Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Spencer of Sedgewick Post, G. A. R. and Women's Relief Corps, visited at her home, 417 South Birch street, and entertained her with an afternoon of music.

They were accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Cole, who was piano accompanist for the violin numbers played by Mr. Spencer. He is one of the typical old-time violinists, and made his "fiddle" fairly sing with all the favorite melodies of the good old days, when "huskin' bees" and "quiltin' parties" were chief among social affairs.

POE'S STORIES: The Oblong Box

Sketches by Redner
Synopsis by Braucher

The strange relations of the Wyatts during the voyage was a source of growing bewilderment to the writer. Mrs. Wyatt remained very talkative. She was much older than Wyatt, and her conversation was not that of an educated woman. Her face was plain, even "indifferent looking." The women called her "vulgar."

Remembering that Wyatt had once written him that he had married "for love only" the writer was more puzzled than ever.

The sisters remained aloof from the passengers, confining themselves to their staterooms during most of the voyage.

Determining to watch the staterooms a second time, the writer again saw Mrs. Wyatt steal into the extra room. From the room of his friend, the writer thought he could hear the opening of the strange box with a chisel. There seemed no solution to the mystery. (Continued.)

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

ROME, Italy, Aug. 22.—"And believe me, when I come the next time, I'll have no baggage—just the duds on my back!"

If there is any one classic remark heard from the ruby lips of "we foreigners" who have trekked across the salty waves for to see the Apaches of Montmartre and the dokeny of Italy all dressed up with red ribbons on their hair, it is the above.

All by way of launching into the lesson, part of which, at least, shall concern itself with what to wear and what to bring when you come to Europe.

This is not so highbrow perhaps as a sage dissertation on the rubble heap known as the Roman forum, or as dramatic as an exposition of the Cemetery of the Capucines in this town of Rome, which cemetery is marred and frescoed with tricky designs wrought from the rotted bones of some 4000 monks buried there, with an occasional highlight of art in the way of a skeleton dressed in a monk's cowl, huddled in a wall niche.

But whether highbrow or dramatic, you will bless me a thousandfold when you trek into parts unknown with one little two-by-four wicker suitcase and a haughty smile for the "porteurs" and "facchini" who would grab on to inheritance along with one's luggage.

Friends who have been to Europe mean well, but each has his or her own little pet scheme on the howl and the where-withal.

"Don't take a trunk. It will drive you mad!" said one or two.

"Don't try to travel with a suitcase—you'll have being away so long without all the comforts of home!" said another faction.

We heeded the outcry of the first faction, thanks whatever Gods there be! Do thou likewise! A trunk when traveling in Europe is about as necessary as a maiden's hair fern growing from horses' ears.

Besides, the pence, imagine! One pays full fare for a trunk in all countries of Europe.

Having steered you into the straight and narrow which permits of no trunk when traveling in Europe, let me attempt to persuade you to let the family suitcase tarry at home, and take with you into parts afar merely an overnight bag stocked with only such essentials as you will need on the boat, and such things as can not be resupplied in most any store anywhere.

And there are fully as many kinds of stores in Europe as at home, mark ye!

It works like this. Porters are allowed on only very few trains in Europe. We have found but one station in almost constant travel over three nations where porters were permitted to board trains at stations and take luggage off.

The accepted method is for one-half of one's party to betake itself to the platform while the other faction hurls baggage through the compartment window at 'em or on 'em, smash what will.

Not so much fun when one has attempted to look the shore of porteries and pictures and perfumes, all that the old family pocket book will stand, heavy though the result may be!

Then one pays the porter by bag, something like 15 cents a bag, which does not seem so much, but after the first hundred moves might have bought a gorgeous Roman scarf or Florentine bag.

One pays per bag, also, in the taxis, and one finds oneself growing more and more reluctant to move on to fairer climes with the baggage eternally haunting one!

The very smartest American I have found in Europe is a Boston professor who is traveling utterly sans baggage save for a brief-case wherein are tucked a toothbrush and one specimen of the family B. V. D. Professorial.

He buys soap, cough drops, shoe strings, handkerchiefs, shaving cream as he needs it, or them. He estimates that he is in no way extravagant by throwing his various purchases away when contrasted with the cost of baggage if he had it.

He is the merriest, happiest, traveling soul, pushing on from one unknown place to another, walking highways and blivays, as free to roam when and where he will as the ubiquitous Italian flea.

One dark and cool traveling costume is about all one needs, anyway. Travelers are accepted at par value and nothing more is expected of them. I have not seen one dress hat among the traveling herd yet!

Bamboos and similar plants can now be woven by a patent process into fabric which is much cheaper than material made from either flax or cotton.

JANET

I have found no charm in gold
Like the light in Janet's eyes;
Though she is but four years old
In her smile contentment lies.
Fame has nothing to bestow
Fairer than those cheeks aglow.

Jewels owned grow commonplace,
Glory once achieved turns stale,
But my Janet's lovely face
Holds a charm which cannot fail,
And the music of her voice
Makes my weary heart rejoice.

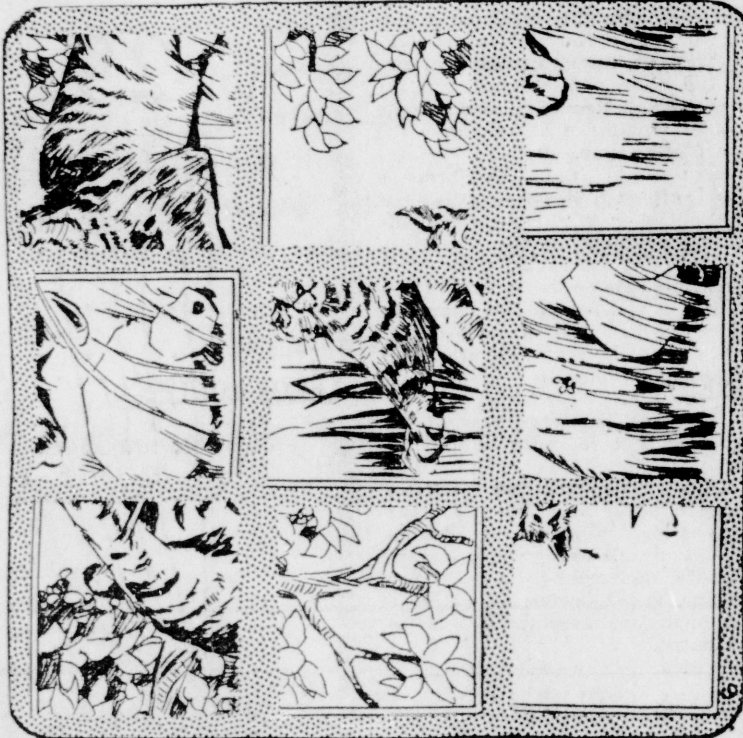

Man is eager to possess,
But the richest of them brings
No such lasting happiness,
No such wealth of honest pride
As this baby at my side.

Little bud that soon will flower
Now you cannot know or guess
That you hold within your power
All my dreams of happiness.
By your love and by your mirth
I'm the richest man on earth.

HIGH CROWNS
Hats are high of crown and wide of brim. Most of the crowns are softened by a draped or tucked variation. The brims droop more than in the old-fashioned sailor.

FLOWERS EFFECTIVE
There is a decided effort to revive the use of flowers on hats and Paris is sending over many attractive models in black felt with one brilliant flower on the brim.

LEATHER COATS
Leather topcoats in dull blues, greens, wines and browns are sure to be popular for country wear, or for college sports. They are being made of soft leather and luxuriously lined.

FLESH CHIFFON
For the young girl, no dance frock is more appealing than one of flesh-colored chiffon, trimmed with pearls or crystal beads.

WEIGHTS WORDS
LONDON, Aug. 23.—It takes hundreds of words to balance a human hair on the scales, but a super-scale has been devised by the Society of Inspectors of Weights and Measures which will weigh even a signature. The weight of a word can be detected only under the lens of a powerful microscope. The sheet of paper is first weighed, then the word is written upon it and the whole weighed again.

Menus for the Family

BREAKFAST—Apple sauce, cereal cooked with dates, thin cream, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Stuffed green peppers, bread and butter sandwiches, radishes, chilled watermelon, sponge cake, milk, tea.

DINNER—Jellied bouillon, rice loaf, boiled okra, watercress and cheese ball salad, junket ice cream, crisp cookies, milk, coffee.

This day's menu is planned for one of those days when it's just too hot to eat! However, the meals are interesting and appetizing enough to induce even the most languid to "sit up and take notice."

Okra is fresh in the markets and makes a delicious change from string beans and carrots. Choose tender pods and test by cutting a little. Small pods are cooked whole, but large ones are cut in half-inch slices. A pound of okra measures a little over a quart and will serve six persons.

Boiled Okra
One quart okra pods, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2 teaspoon pepper.

Wash pods well and carefully to avoid breaking. Cut off stems. Put into stew pan and pour over boiling water to cover. Simmer until tender, about 30 minutes. Let water cook away as much as possible without burning. Drain if necessary. Put into hot serving dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper and pour over butter melted. Put dish in a hot oven for five minutes to make very hot and serve.

"JERSEY DEVILS"
WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 23.—The "Jersey devil," terror of the forests near West Orange, has had a litter of nine pups, whelps, cubs, or what you will. The "devil" has been shot at scores of times, but has been seen behind the stump of a tree by some boys. They have the heads of dogs, residents say, but the bodies are considerably heavier.

TOO MUCH CHEESE
LONDON, Aug. 23.—The freighter Suffolk had just reached Liverpool and was being unloaded. Stevedores rushed from the hold, complaining of a dreadful odor. Two officers went to investigate. Half an hour later, when they had failed to return, a search was started. They were found unconscious in the hold, gassed by the fumes given off by the ship's cargo of cheese.

I would appreciate your consideration and support in my ambition to serve you as treasurer. Whether or not you vote for me, we will continue to be good friends.

If I am complimented by election, I will give my undivided time and attention to the office—which means that I will sever connection with newspaper work, in which I have been engaged for 37 years. CONGRESSMAN SWING FLAYS
GOVERNOR'S POSITION ON BOULDER DAM LEGISLATION

"I oppose with all earnestness the re-election of Governor Richardson because his record as a governor shows that he has done nothing helpful (for the Boulder dam) but has actually made progress more difficult. I am for Lt. Gov. C. C. Young because he has always been a sincere friend of the project and because I know that as a governor he will do everything in his power to aid the passage of the Swing-Johnson bill. It is evident that he is the only candidate who can defeat Richardson."

With this ringing denunciation of Governor Richardson and plea for the election of C. C. Young as the Republican nominee, Congressman Phil D. Swing, the joint author, with Senator Hiram Johnson, of the Swing-Johnson bill, addressed a large crowd of voters in Riverside, Saturday night. Political observers compared the reception given the congressman to that extended to him two years ago, when he spoke in Riverside in behalf of his candidacy, when he was opposed by Senator Sample, of San Diego. The result of that meeting was that Riverside county was topped into the Swing column by more than a three to one vote. Swing has no opposition this year.

Assemblyman A. C. Murray, an ex-service man, and member of the last legislature, presided at the Riverside meeting.

Won't Lie Down

"I want to congress to make the Boulder dam fight my fight, and I have given my best years to the cause. I do not propose to lie down on the fight now, but am determined to fight anybody who fights this project," Swing declared. He reviewed the claims of Governor Richardson to show his "activity" for the Boulder dam and Colorado river development as follows:

"Opposed the Finney resolution; sent his engineer to attend the senate committee hearings in the southwest; made a speech to the National Editorial association in San Diego; at his direction, his state engineer, Paul Bailey, has undertaken an investigation for the determination of the most economic plan for the storage of the Colorado river water 'and has discovered a direct aqueduct route from the Colorado at a high location of tremendous importance to California."

Congressman Swing continued: "The Finney resolution was our trump card on which we traded to bring the support of the upper basin states to our project. Those states were interested only in obtaining the ratification of the compact. We want the Boulder dam. The Finney resolution tied these two together and made it to the interest of the upper basin states to support our project in order to get their compact. If the governor had succeeded in his fight against the Finney resolution he would have taken from us our only means of bringing the upper basin states' representatives into line in support of the Swing-Johnson bill."

Governor Richardson had a great opportunity in San Diego to tell the eastern editors of the vital importance to California of the passage at the coming short session of Congress of the Swing-Johnson bill for the high dam at Boulder canyon and the All-American canal.

"He did nothing of the kind. He did not so much as mention the pending bill, but contented himself with asking them to study the general problem of Colorado river development. Of course, it was impossible for the governor to go any further than he did without alienating the support of Harry Chandler and the power corporations."

"Boulder dam is the keystone of the arch around which we build our whole case in Washington. These declarations by Governor Richardson in Washington effective ammunition to use against us when congress convenes in December."

"The evidence and the facts prove beyond question that Governor Richardson's activities are going to make it more difficult to pass the Swing-Johnson bill. We are entitled to have, and must have, the unquestioned support and co-operation of the chief executive of California. We shall have it if Young is chosen. We certainly will not have it if the present governor is re-elected."

FASCINATING WIDOW
CAUSES 6 SUICIDES

BUDAPEST, Aug. 23.—Charged with inciting six different young men to commit suicide, a Budapest widow has been taken into custody by the police.

A seventh, instead of yielding to her persuasive argument that "it would be beautiful to take poison and die in the arms of a beautiful woman," broke away from her embraces and rushed to the nearest police station.

The woman's mentality in wishing to have the young men die in her presence promises several weeks of interesting study to psychoanalysts.

The method which she employed was to induce her victims to commit suicide with her. To each she gave real poison while she drank a harmless potion of the same color.

Rats Are Cured
By Cancer Serum

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A cancer serum making rats immune, is described in the annual report of the British Empire Cancer campaign.

Dr. Thomas Dumsden, of the Lister Institute, performed experiments on 50 rats successfully, according to the report. Injection of the appropriate serum in malignant tumors in the feet of rats, the report indicates, caused the tumors to disappear. Temporary stoppage of circulation in the part affected is a part of the procedure.

It was found, the report declares that two tumors in different feet of a rat could be made to vanish by treatment of only one and that rats which had been subjected to the serum treatment, were immune to subsequent attacks of cancer.

Congressman
To Speak
Twice in S. A.

Congressman Phil D. Swing, tireless exponent of Boulder dam legislation, will speak in Santa Ana twice this week, according to Stanley Goode, chairman of the Young-for-Governor campaign committee, and vice president of the Young Men's Republican club. He will speak at Birch park Thursday evening, following the band concert, to what is expected to be one of the largest political gatherings in Santa Ana in the primary campaign.

Congressman Swing will speak Friday evening at St. Ann's Inn, under the auspices of the Young Men's Republican club. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock. Tickets may be secured at the White Cross Drug company, The Register and the First National bank.

BEAUTY HONORS ARE SOUGHT BY
BUCK PRIVATES

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—"And so," remarked the hard-boiled top sergeant to the equally flint-like chief petty officer, "it has come to this!"

And so it has.

For the army is going to have a beauty contest, at least the 30th infantry, stationed at the San Francisco Presidio, is.

Two days hence, Col. Bolles, commanding officer of the regiment, will pass along the line of aspirants and, after he has made a complete inspection of profiles he will name the winner.

Miss Beryl Mills, voted to be the most beautiful girl in Australia, who is on her way to Atlantic City to participate in a beauty contest, and Fay Lanphier, "Miss America," will be present to help, if necessary, Col. Bolles make his selection.

Never before, it is said, has the Presidio reached such a stage of excitement.

Beauty may be only skin deep, say the participants, but with a "Miss America" and a "Miss Australia" hovering nearby the contest is likely to be particularly spirited. It is even hinted that the Adonis of the 30th may have more than a passing chance to "cash in" on his personal beauty.

While Col. Bolles issued orders for the band to begin practicing "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," he intimated the winner of the contest would be given a trip to Hollywood—presumably for a visit to the sector where the male beauty flourishes.

"And so," said—

P.-T. A. PRESIDENT
TELLS FUNDS NEED

The imperative need of raising funds to relieve distress among destitute children, thus checking the ravages of tuberculosis resulting from undernourishment, is pointed out in an appeal addressed to the members of the Orange County Parent-Teacher organization by Mrs. Fay R. Spangler, president of the Santa Ana City federation, asking that they make a special effort to attend Parent-Teacher day, September 9, at the Orange County fair.

In this connection, Mrs. Spangler points out that participation in the gate receipts of the day on a fifty-fifty basis is one of the main sources of revenue to the treasury of the county organization. Failure to raise a substantial sum for lack of attendance, not only will deprive P.-T. A. workers of necessary funds to carry on its child welfare work, but handicap its relief activities in destitute homes.

She adds that if each Parent-Teacher member in the entire county will take it upon herself, to sell at least two tickets, the event will be a big success.

More Proof

Who can gainsay proven facts? One or a dozen men may be mistaken or even lucky.

But when scores—hundreds, thousands and tens of thousands of men and women in all walks of life say the same thing—THAT is facts and positive proof.

The New Chevrolet has proven itself beyond any shadow of a doubt to be the one outstanding TROUBLE PROOF AUTOMOBILE of the Twentieth Century.

This, coupled with good looks, easy riding, easy handling, heretofore unheard of running and repair costs, high resale value, completes your requirements for extraordinary high value at low cost.

Here's the Positive Proof

Santa Ana, Calif.,
August 18, 1926.

B. J. MacMullen Co.,
City.

Dear Sir:

On January 25, 1926, I purchased from you a Chevrolet Roadster and on July 29th last, I had driven same 21,293 miles. I then traded this to you for a Chevrolet Landau and figured my depreciation and expense.

My cost per mile for depreciation and gas on this Roadster was .0203 cents (slight fraction over two cents) per mile. I had only two punctures during this time, no mechanical trouble and no expense except grinding valves, cleaning carbon and battery repair.

Respectfully yours,

SIGNED: LEROY CORLISS,
316 Stanford Street
Santa Ana, Calif.

MORE PROOF

**** "On July 21, 1925, I purchased from you a new 1925 Chevrolet Coupe, and have driven it nearly 10,000 miles to date, and have not spent one cent in mechanical repairs or maintenance during the entire period of one year."

"The only operating expense I have had, outside of gasoline and oil, has been one valve grinding job." ****

MORE PROOF

**** "I bought a 1925 Roadster (New) from you August 10th, 1925, and have driven the car more than ten thousand miles (10,000) with a repair and parts expense of exactly $1.00 for the entire period." ****

MORE PROOF

**** "I purchased a 1925 Chevrolet New Type Sedan in August, 1925, and have driven this car to date in excess of 21,000 miles, with a mechanical repair expense of less than $2.00." ****

MORE PROOF

**** "I have had such wonderful results from the Chevrolet Touring Car I purchased from you March 14, 1925, that I feel sure you would be glad to know that up to date I have spent for repairs and maintenance only $5.90, which was for a valve grinding job, May 18, 1926." ****

MORE PROOF

**** "It is very gratifying to me to know that I have a car that to date I have driven over seven thousand miles, and have not spent one cent in mechanical repairs."

MORE PROOF

"I have been averaging over twenty-nine miles to the gallon of gasoline and feel that I could run more than five hundred miles to the quart of oil, if I care to do so." ****

MORE PROOF

**** "Am writing you to express my appreciation of the performance of my Chevrolet. I believe I have the distinction of purchasing the first car sold through your agency after you took it over in May, 1925."

"My speedometer reads 12,572, and repair bills have been 'nil.' Still have all my original tires and they look good for 10,000 miles more. I use a good grade of Eastern medium oil, which I change every 1000 miles and rarely ever have to add any. My gasoline mileage runs around 22 to 23 miles per gallon on short drives and frequent stops. On long drives I get 25 miles and better per gallon." ****

MORE PROOF

**** "My Chevrolet Coach, which has been in use continually with a total expense for repairs and parts at a cost of ten cents (10c) for the entire period of one year." ****

All of the above original letters, with many more, are on file at our office and are open for your inspection.

Now the thing for you to do is—come in—look this car over—take a ride (without obligation), then ask any owner. He knows and will give you further proof. Convincing proof of comfort, economy and value.

"WHAT PRICE GOVERNOR?"

People of California, with the Primary Elections on August 31st drawing very near, it is the duty of every voter to give the selection of our next Governor most serious consideration, for the good and sufficient reason that another mistake like the one we made when we elected Mr. Richardson, means more dollars out of your pocket and a great financial loss to the State of California.

In electing Mr. Richardson Governor of California, the people of this State did so on one thing, and that one thing was his pronounced promise of an economy program in handling State Affairs, but what a rude awakening stares us in the face when we realize that all his promises of economy have developed into an "AIR BLOWN BUBBLE."

During the past three years under the guidance of Mr. Richardson, we find that our State expenditures have amounted to "THREE HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS," and through his penny wise and pound foolish management a great amount of this vast sum has proven a straight loss to this State.

As a comparison, and for your information, permit me to advise that for the eight years previous to Mr. Richardson's taking office, our State expenditures were many, many millions less than he dumped off in a little over three years.

So, taking as a basis these cold blooded facts, every voter must admit that Mr. Richardson's economy platform has proven a huge and expensive joke to the people of California.

You might console yourself by saying, it's the State's money and what do you care, but don't kid yourself that way, because it's your money and my money, and to prove all this all you have to do is figure out how many gallons of gasoline you use in four years, multiply it by the present tax of two cents a gallon and you'll see how much you donated from that one source alone.

Had Mr. Richardson proven throughout his three and a half years of State Service that he was a Governor with the interest of all the people at heart, we possibly could forgive him for his gross inability in office, but with the irrefutable evidence before us that he is owned and controlled by "PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATIONS," with only the interest of the chosen few at heart, how can we alibi him?

Voters of California, if you are at all in doubt as to the authenticity of the above statement, just look around you and see who is championing his appeal for re-election. "MR. HARRY CHANDLER AND THE LOS ANGELES TIMES."

Do the people of this State want a Governor that jumps through a hoop every time Mr. Chandler or a Public Service Corporation cracks the whip? I don't believe we do.

Folks, a government of any country, or any State, must have a "Soul" if it is going to function with the same interest for "THE MAN WITH THE DINNER PAIL" as it does for the man with the "HUNDRED MILLION DOLLAR BANK ROLL," and I maintain that our State Government for the past three and a half years has been functioning without a Soul, without a Conscience, and without a capable man at the helm. The sooner the people of California wake up to the fact that you can't send a boy out to do a man's work, the sooner our elective offices will be filled with executive ability.

To my way of thinking, Mr. Richardson is as totally unqualified to hold the high office of Governor of California as a Jack Rabbit is unfit to be the King of the forest.

My next article will deal with the Swing-Johnson Bill for the All-American Canal, and why Mr. Chandler and Mr. Richardson are so much against it.

Political Periscope DIFFICULT TO KEEP TRACK OF MANY POLITICAL MOVES AS ELECTION DRAWS NEAR

It would take half a dozen double-jointed periscopes to keep up with the movements of various candidates for county and township offices these past weeks.

A lot of those interested in politics had their attention taken for a time by the coming of Governor Richardson, who had a few things to say, and the visit of Senator Johnson, who also had a few things to talk about, but it would take more than Richardson and Johnson combined to keep Sam Jernigan and C. E. Jackson from watching their fences.

Congressman Phil Swing is to be here this week for a day or two to tell just why he is for C. C. Young for governor. It looks as though Swing's speech will be about the last of the campaign hereabouts.

That is, the last from a platform. There's no plenty of burlesque speeches made right up to the last minute of that fateful Tuesday, August 31st.

Candidates have taken a long breath. They are hitting the high spots on all cylinders these days. Oh, yes, one hears once in awhile of some candidate who seems a bit discouraged, but that kind of candidate is the exception. To every candidate, the outlook is rosy. A man has to be an optimist to go through a campaign. He gets to thinking about how big this county is and how few people he can see in a day, even if he travels from 6 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. He hears that his opponent is making a wonderful campaign. But that is all offset by his optimism and by the fact that mighty few voters like to tell a candidate that they don't want to see him elected and that they're going to vote for the other fellow. It is well known that few candidates are good judges of their own progress.

Every candidate has been told all this, and that's why every candidate is on the anxious seat right now.

Some Hard Campaigning

It comes to the periscope that there are some mighty hard battles drawing to a close. The sun will soon set on some lively affairs.

If one doesn't believe there's some guessing going on, let him prognosticate around a bit.

Take the sheriff's fight, for instance. You can get a lot of statements about how he had it looks for Sam Jernigan and how sure it is that Jackson will get bumped. There has been more psychology turned loose in that contest than in all the others.

"This man's licked," went one story. It flew around like war propaganda.

"Wrong, the other man's got it, sure," went forth another story.

Always in this county, the race for sheriff has been picturesque. This year's race has been living strictly up to traditions.

End at Primaries

The election next week will settle most of the county and township contests. There will be a few local affairs left over for final adjudication at the November election. Wherever there are but two men running, it's a cinch that the primaries will end the agony. On the county ticket, there are a number of these two-man events. Here they are: R. P. Mitchell, incumbent, and Arthur E. Crawford, for county superintendent of schools; Jackson and Jernigan, incumbent, for sheriff; C. N. Mozley and Z. B. West Jr., for district attorney; W. C. Jerome, incumbent, and G. S. Richardson, for auditor; James Sleeper, incumbent, and H. H. Crooke, for assessor; W. K. Hilliard, incumbent, and G. L. Bates, for surveyor.

Here are three contests that may or may not be settled at the primaries: J. C. Joplin, incumbent, Horace Fine and James E. Livezey, for treasurer; J. C. Allen, Homer G. Ames, incumbent, W. H. Thomas and A. P. Nelson, for superior judge; Morris Cain, Clinton James, J. C. Metzgar, Kenneth E. Morrison, incumbent, Frank G. Pinkerton, for justice of the peace of Santa Ana township. Any candidate in any of these three races can end his race at the primaries if he gets a majority of the all votes cast. Needless to say, every man of them hopes that he can get this highly desirable majority at the primaries.

There are five county office holders who haven't a thing to worry them. That is, they are without opposition. These lucky officials are County Clerk J. M. Backs, County Tax Collector J. C. Lamb, Superior Judge E. J. Marks, Coroner and Public Administrator C. D. Brown, and County Recorder Christine Whitney.

How Big a Vote Coming?

Every candidate is concerned over the size of the vote next week. To a periscope on the sidelines, it looks as though a very light vote might be favorable to the new candidates, while anything like a heavy vote will be welcomed by the older candidates.

Think it over. Isn't that a logical thought? A new man in a county this size has to make himself known to several thousand voters, and known well enough and favorably enough for them to vote for him. The man who has been through former campaigns and who has been in office has a basis of "knownness" to start with that will give him the best of it among the thousands of voters who may not be seen this campaign by any candidate.

So that's one reason why speculation as to the size of the vote is being indulged in.

Looking at Figures

It's a cinch that registration figures and possible percentage of voters to be cast are being looked over anxiously by quite a number of supervisory candidates.

There are three supervisors to be elected this year. Supervisors S. H. Finley, of Santa Ana, and William Schumacher, of Buena Park, are holdovers, each having been elected two years ago for a four-year term. Two of the present board are to be elected. Supervisor Willard Smith, of Villa Park, in the fourth district, is opposed by C. D. Lester, of Orange.

Supervisor George Jeffrey, of Irvine, has four opponents, and each of them believes he is going strong. Jeffrey himself says that he is going strong. Over in the second district he is going strong. These four are John Mitchell, of Garden Grove, Sterling Price, of Bolsa, and R. L. Obarr and W. L. McKenney, of Huntington Beach.

In these supervisory districts there are some geographical problems. The size of registration in various portions of the district offers sources of strength or sources of worry.

Just for a little something for those interested to ponder over, the registration by communities in the fifth district is herewith given:

Newport Beach, 1139; Tustin, 1081; Costa Mesa, 1068; Laguna Beach, 761; Santa Ana precincts 26 to 50, 392; San Juan Capistrano, 360; Delhi, 321; Irvine, 227; Greenville, 200; El Toro, 83; Trabuco, 33.

There was a time when Tustin rather dominated the district in the choice of a supervisor. Now there is a preponderance of votes along the coast. Tustin is the home of three candidates, S. W. Stanley, James Warner and H. A. Wassum. Abe Johnson lives at Laguna Beach, where a strong organization has been made to fight for him. Jeffrey lives in Irvine precinct. His friends, analyzing the situation, say he will get strong support at Costa Mesa and Newport Beach. A day or two ago, a resident of the Delhi section said the five candidates for supervisor had been overlooking a big bet just south of Santa Ana, for the two Santa Ana precincts and Delhi together have a registration of more than 700.

If none of these five gets a majority of all votes cast at the primary, there must be a run-off in November. In that case, which two will it be?

ROMANCE AND INDUSTRY MIX IN OLD SOUTH

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 23.—The romance of the old south has intermingled with industrial development to make the western tier of these states a year-round attraction to travelers.

Horses are the magnet which attracts thousands of persons to this state annually. Lexington is the center of the breeding district, and Idle Hour farm, owned by Col. E. R. Bradley, is the show place with its beautiful properties and elaborate equipment.

The caves in Fulton county are a premier attraction for thousands of others, while few motorists neglect to drive through the blue-grass region, located among the hills and framed in gorges which make it a wonderland 8000 square miles in area.

Many Visit Tombs

Another 5000-square mile area in the western part of the state contains lakes, ponds, marshes and thickets where about in profusion large families of wild life.

To the south is the Parthenon at Nashville, Tenn. This sole replica of the Greek structure of ancient times was erected in 1897 for the centenary celebration of the state of Tennessee. It has been made permanent by a number of famous artists.

Near Nashville also is located the Hermitage, home of President Jackson, which has been preserved intact. His tomb is in the garden. Nearby on the state capitol grounds are the tomb of President Polk and the statue of Sam Davis.

Tennessee's natural attractions roughly are divided into two districts. The mountainous region is in the east. There are the Cumberland plateau and Lookout mountain near Chattanooga, while Reelfoot lake, 52,000 acres in extent, attracts fishermen to the northwest.

Alabama's charm from a scenic viewpoint is rivalled by the magnitude of its industrial activities.

The Muscle Shoals development the Tennessee river is the largest of these, being located near Sheffield and Florence. Birmingham long has been famous for its steel mills.

Montgomery retains many reminders of the days of the Confederacy, when it aspired to be the nation's capital. The capitol of the southern states and the home of Jefferson Davis, the only president from the south, still stand.

The French occupation is remembered by Fort Toulouse, built by the French in 1714 and occupied by the Americans an even century later. The state also is dotted with Indian mounds.

The tourist may then drive westward through Mississippi, where much has been left unchanged since the Civil war, and then into New Orleans, on the Mississippi delta. The city is a curiosity stronghold, there being in its buildings the un-mixed lines denoting the Spanish and French rule prior to its acquisition in 1804 by this country.

A living memento from a great epic is preserved in Baton Rouge, where stands an ancient oak tree beneath which the lovers of Longfellow's "Evangeline" were reunited.

SILK MATERIAL. LIVELY COLORS ARE POPULAR

PARIS, Aug. 23.—From a visit to a silk manufacturer it is possible to learn some of the new ways in which fashion is running. It is clear that evening dress is about to be more magnificent, and designs on the materials indicate the form and fashion of a dress, coat or cape. What dressmakers did by hand manufacturers now do by machinery.

Last season machine-pleating displaced hand-pleating. For the coming season machine-pleating is imitated by stripes, interwoven or printed. Everything is so skillfully done that it may easily pass for handwork.

Lame Most Popular
Lame, or cloth of silk and metal interwoven, is the most popular material. All materials are threaded more or less with gold or silver, or both metal threads may be used together. The new lames are as soft and supple as the fine silk; they are shot with colors and velvet, woven with silk patterns. Velvet, embroidered with gold and silver, is called lame velvet. There are lame velvets, lame moires, lame satins, lame voiles.

All colors are rich; there are no pale pastel shades, but rust and wine reds, deep nightshade purples, dead-leaf browns, and yellow greens and grays may all be found in plain materials, though figured stuffs are more fashionable. Feather and palm-leaf patterns, and small designs in flowers and geometrical figures are usual.

Shaded Hems
Some materials have deep borders of patterns, others have shaded hems with flower borders above them. Stripes have flower patterns worked over them, and brocaded materials have heavy embossments of gold and silver, or raised velvet flowers.

Flamenza is a popular voile material. It may be like plain crepe, or have a slight rib with a snake design running down it. This, copied exactly from the skin of a boa-constrictor or a python, is to be found in gray and white, or in brighter colors. Many materials have either a fish, or snake skin design.

Velvet has been improved as much as lame; it is now soft and silken, but with substance enough to make it hang well. It is interwoven magnificently with silk designs, it is embossed, and it is also printed on the wrong side with bright colors, which show faintly on the right side, but may be used on both.

Fish, Snake Designs
Stamped velvets have fish and snake designs on them, others have flowers printed on them; then they are stamped to look like crocodile skin. The fashion of massing many colors on and in one material and of setting one pattern over another produces a sort of tapestry; an amateur might think it was worked by hand.

Voiles are further printed in stripes and floral patterns shaded, embossed, brocaded with velvet leaves and again over bright flower patterns. A novelty is a black and white check waterproof material which is all white on the wrong side.

A dull artificial silk has been produced which has an artificial satin back. There is also artificial silk with a design in velvet. Quite new, too, is the ready crushed lame which no further creasing will harm. Sateen is an artificial satin which looks like dull silk crepe marocain. Dull satin is a plain, soft, heavy satin which is ideal for a plain white or gray dinner dress. Over many bright colored patterns a faint mist of woven silk is passed.

1 KILLED, 2 HURT IN PLANE CRASH

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—Police investigation today brought out that the 400-foot nose dive of an airplane near Inglewood, which resulted in the death of one passenger and the serious injury of two others, probably was caused by inexperienced operation of the plane.

Investigators found that the pilot and owner of the plane had bought the craft only a week ago and had had less than a month of flying experience. The plane had been in the air only a few minutes when the nose dive occurred.

The dead youth is Angelino Urrutia. Seriously injured are Raymond Urrutecoechar and Manuel Caballero. The latter was the pilot and owner.

Huge Lights for Airways Bought

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The government has taken another step to encourage commercial aviation, with purchase by the commerce department of 24-inch revolving lights to facilitate night flying on seven established airways.

The lights, with a normal visibility of 50 miles, will be placed at 10-mile intervals and will operate all night. Delivery is expected in 90 days.

Present plans provide for complete lighting of the New York Boston route. Dark ends also will be lighted at the earliest opportunity on other routes, including Salt Lake City to Los Angeles.

IMPORT HAIR

LONDON, Aug. 23.—British women do not grow good enough hair for wigs, transformations and hair nets, according to F. Chew, formerly of the Guild of Hairdressers. The hair left by many bobbed heads is useless since better quality can be obtained from Italy, Bavaria and Tyrol where women allow their hair to float on the breeze in the sun's rays.

EQUALITY BEFORE THE LAW—In my court, no man has ever had any privilege or preference over any other man. No man ever will. If anyone believes in special privilege or expects to seek special favors from Santa Ana Justice court, that person had better vote for some other candidate. He can't get them from me. Examine my record.

STRICT LAW ENFORCEMENT—I want to repeat assurances to the people of Santa Ana township—to the world, for that matter—that I stand for firm enforcement of law. That does not mean fanatical enforcement but a judicious interpretation of the spirit of our laws. Particularly I pledge myself to do my utmost to keep the highways safe and to smash the booze traffic. Examine my record.

EFFICIENCY—No candidate who asks the people to place him in charge of this very important court, can disregard the issue of efficiency. If he dodges it now and wins the election, it will follow him into office and dog his heels—his nemesis. Woe unto the incompetent candidate, should he be elected, and still more woe to his constituents. This court demands both executive and legal efficiency. Examine my record.

OPPOSITION TO PROPOSAL FOR REPEAL OF DRY ACT IS VOICED

Head of Law Enforcement Committee Speaker at Vesper Service in Park

TREMENDOUS POWER OF WOMEN IS TOLD

Measure Seeking Bible Use In Public Schools Given Indorsement at Meeting

Opposition to a proposed initiative measure to repeal the Wright act and indorsement of another initiative measure, allowing the Bible in the public schools, were voiced yesterday afternoon by speakers addressing a union meeting of Protestant women church members in Birch park. The meeting, designated as "vesper service," was held under the auspices of the Santa Ana organization of the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. John C. Urquhart, of Los Angeles, chairman of the California Women's Committee of Law Enforcement, a new state organization, affiliated with the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement, spoke on the prohibition issue. After outlining the main objectives of her organization, she told her listeners that the eighteenth amendment and the nineteenth amendment, the latter providing for equal suffrage, are unknown quantities in the minds of the politicians.

Strength of Women
Pointing to the tremendous strength of the united woman vote throughout the country, if effectively organized, the speaker declared that this fact is appreciated by the politicians who are kept guessing as to the real strength and power of the women at the polls.

Mrs. Urquhart further explained that the organization of the Women's Committee for Law Enforcement did not contemplate the taking over of the work carried on by the W. C. T. U. and the Y. W. C. A., but to co-operate with these organizations.

Voicing her opposition to the proposed repeal of the Wright act, the temperance worker said that while the initiative will not modify the Volstead act in a single respect, it will discredit California as a state whose people refuse to comply with an obligation imposed by the constitution of the United States.

Increase in Bootlegging
It will take away from 20,000 peace officers of the state the power to stop bootlegging, she asserted. Where there now is one bootlegger making and selling his deadly stuff,

SUNKEN GARDEN IS PART OF IMPOSING ENTRANCE AT COUNTY FAIR GROUNDS

Picture shows Barbara Sidnam, of the Orange County fair staff, seated near the sunken garden which has been installed at the entrance of the fair grounds by Arthur Blanding, of Santa Ana.

Exhibits of Birds and Eggs To Be Special Feature Of Annual Show

The Orange County fair beautiful!

The 10th annual fair is to outshine all others from an artistic viewpoint, according to J. R. Hunt, manager.

With that end in view, Hunt arranged with Arthur Blanding, of Santa Ana, to adorn the entrance to the permanent location with shrubs, flowers and a sunken garden. The shrubbery was set out last week, under Blanding's direction, and already had greatly added to the imposing appearance of the entrance.

With the fair dates, September 6 to 11, fast approaching, Hunt said today there was every indication that the exposition this year would set a record both in attendance and the quality of exhibits.

A collection of 200 birds' eggs, property of John R. Nichols, of Garden Grove, will be one of the unique exhibits. According to Fannie R. Stanley, chairman of aviculture, some of the eggs are from birds native to India and San Domingo. They will be shown, with several nests, in as natural a setting as is possible to produce. Each egg will be accompanied by name of the bird and number.

Fred Dierker, owner of the Peter Pan gardens, Lacy street, Santa Ana, will exhibit a 10x10 foot aviary. There also will be several displays of fine birds and fish in this department.

Other bird men of the county will assist with the exhibit.

SUPERVISORS WILL TAKE UP HARBOR BONDS QUESTION AT TOMORROW'S BOARD SESSION

Will the county supervisors call a new election on the question of voting Newport harbor bonds when they meet tomorrow?

This was a topic of conversation and cogitation today as the board prepared to conduct its scheduled hearing upon the report of the county harbor commission, which was filed several weeks ago.

At tomorrow's hearing, it is said, the supervisors either may vote to fix the date of the election at once, or decide to continue the hearing on the harbor report until a later date for final action. There has been no advance indication of what the supervisors will do with the matter.

Boosters of the harbor, who want immediate action upon a harbor election, will be well represented at the supervisory meeting, according to reports. An effort is being made, it is said, to get the entire membership of the Committee of Two Hundred, harbor boosters, to attend the meeting. The committee represents all sections of the county.

If the board decides to call an election at once, it probably will select a date between the primary and general elections, it is believed. Chairman T. B. Talbot already has expressed the opinion that such a date would be advisable. The harbor commission's report recommends a bond proposal of $650,000 for improvement of the harbor entrance, the same item that was submitted as a part of the double bond proposal, which was defeated June 10.

In connection with tomorrow's hearing, the supervisors asked for expressions of opinion from the citizenship of the county and the Committee of Two Hundred responded with a petition carrying its signatures and its promise to aid in a harbor campaign. Individual communications from prominent residents of the county, urging another election, also have been received, it is said. A petition was presented with the signature of 25 members of the Santa Ana Business and Professional Women's club. Various chambers of commerce likewise have joined in the request for immediate action on the harbor.

SANTA ANANS GIVEN REALTY BOARD OFFICES

Association Names Hoffman and Iverson Chief, Secretary, Respectively

Asa Hoffman and William Iverson, of Santa Ana, were elected president and secretary, respectively, of the Orange County Association of Realty Boards, at the annual picnic and meeting of the association, held Saturday in Orange County park. Hoffman succeeds Harry Crooke and Iverson follows Hugh Nixon, both of Fullerton.

The county realtors were honored by the presence of J. R. Gabbert, state real estate commissioner, and Glenn Willaman, secretary of the California Real Estate association, both of whom hold the dealers of Orange county in the highest esteem. They made brief addresses at the business session, held in the evening following a basketball dinner.

At conclusion of the business session, an impromptu program was presented, with candidates for county offices being featured in simultaneous speaking contests. The candidates were grouped in the speaking contests according to the office they aspire to fill. With Gabbert, Willaman and William Kelm, the latter of Los Angeles, officiating as judges, and Freeman H. Bloodgood, of this city, as official announcer, the men seeking public favor were assessed fines to make up a deficit in the treasury of the association. The "gleaning" was successful.

Three minute "home town talks" by women, all speaking at the same time, offered an amusing period of entertainment, with Mrs. Frank Harris easily winning the honors. Mrs. Harris was true to feminine characteristics and had to be "called down" before she would cease talking, even after her competitors had been eliminated because they laughed during the delivery of their remarks.

Resolutions were passed opposing the proposal of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to increase the annual dues of members from $5 to $10.

Kelm, as chairman of the convention committee, urged that realtors make reservation for the state convention in Del Monte, in October.

The evening was concluded with the realtor group joining with the pipe line department of the Standard Oil company in dancing in the pavilion, music being furnished by Velma Hoyt and Her General Girls.

J. E. Klein, superintendent of the department, had charge of the group, which passed the day in the park in an annual picnic. The realty association meets quarterly and the next session will be held in Fullerton, with officers of the realty board there privileged to name the date.

The sports program of the realtors in the afternoon offered exciting entertainment in series of contests for men, women and children. Bloodgood was committeeman in charge.

An indoor ball game between teams representing Santa Ana and Fullerton was won by Santa Ana, 9 to 1.

Master Foster was the winner in the batting and spelling contests, being rewarded with a ball and bat in the first and a scooter in the second contest.

Mrs. Harry Bladen proved herself skilled in archery and won an archery set.

Mrs. F. C. Pope was awarded the prize for naming correctly the largest number of towns along the coast between Santa Monica and San Diego. Mrs. Herbert Allemen captured honors in the walking contest for women.

Horace Fine captured a double set of horseshoes in an elimination horseshoe pitching contest.

Hugh Nixon and Clarence Oleson proved mean competitors in a foot-race of 50 yards. They tied three times and finally decision was made by tossing a coin, Nixon being the lucky man.

Harry Crooke won the "home town talk" contest for men.

ARMORED AUTO CAPTURED FROM MEXICAN PLOTTERS

An alleged plot of Mexicans to spring a revolution in Lower California was nipped by arrest near the border of several men claimed as leaders, an armored car, two trucks of munitions, and more than 100 other men classed as subordinates. The picture shows the armored car and Gen. Aurelio Sepulveda, asserted chief of staff for Gen. Enrico Estrada, accused as the revolt leader.

RYAN TO TALK AT MEETING OF JUNIOR DIVISION

Joseph Ryan, deputy district attorney, Los Angeles county, will speak tonight at the meeting of the junior division of the Greater Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, at Ketter's cafe, beginning at 6:30 o'clock with dinner.

Miss Zola Powelson, radio singer, will be heard in several numbers, accompanied on the pianoforte by Miss Elsie Fluor. The program committee for the meeting tonight consists of Harry Harlow, R. N. Hookaday, T. H. Richardson, Ed Marble and D. G. Bowles. They have promised a very interesting evening.

Concerning the proposal to support plans for the erection of a stadium, in Santa Ana, which is to be considered tonight, Ridley Smith, secretary of the junior chamber, said:

"Why not? This is the logical location for such a structure and would mean much to our own growth and pleasure. Santa Ana is the county site and it is here that people look for the center of large entertainment and gathering. We hold annually rodeos, fairs, expositions, auto shows, football games, baseball games, track meets and many other gatherings at which it is necessary to build temporary grandstands, or at which there are not sufficient accommodations.

"Should all the money which is spent on these inefficient and temporary structures be applied to a permanent stadium, in a very few years the edifice would be paid for.

"Consider the drawing card this would be for our city. It would be possible to use for hundreds of purposes. At the present time, there is no suitable place for those of our men who wish to play indoor baseball. We do not have a football field large enough to accommodate a real game. See what a stadium does for Los Angeles and San Diego, and then think what it would mean to us, and the thousands of people it would bring to Santa Ana."

AMERICANS IN FRANCE WELL TREATED, WORD

American tourists do not suffer any insults or indignities in Europe is the belief of Mrs. Reginald Barker and her son, 330 East Chestnut street, who have just returned from five months' tour abroad.

Mrs. Barker said that the United States, and especially Southern California, looked better than any country they had visited in their travels. The first two things the tourist notices in Europe are the hard work and poverty of the people outside the cities, she said. In Germany, especially, it seemed that the women bore the brunt of the hard labor. In other countries, they worked along with the men a great deal of the time, but the work was not the grueling toil the German women endured.

No Difficulty in Exchange

Mrs. Barker said that they had no trouble in any country in making the exchange in money. Having heard of the difficulty some persons had experienced, she thought that she might have trouble, but it was entirely unnecessary. Although Americans are reading of the insults and affronts to U. S. citizens in France, the Santa Ana travelers said that they experienced none, and saw no one who had been insulted. The French were courteous and polite to them always, and their stay in Paris was one of the most enjoyable of the trip. Mrs. Barker said that London and Paris were the most fascinating cities she visited.

Cross Channel by Plane
The trip from London to Paris was made by airplane and was one of the most thrilling events of the tour. From the airplane England and France looked like one country and the channel resembled a small river, with ducks swimming slowly around. The trip required two and a half hours.

Italy was the most backward country they visited, Mrs. Barker said. The Italians seemed to be living in a past century, plowing with oxen, and on most of the farms one cow was hitched to the plow, and to the cart that the farmer and his family rode in also. No irrigating was done, and if rain did not fall the crops were allowed to burn up. The vineyards were an inspiring sight, and almost worth the whole trip, according to the tourists.

England was more like the United States than any other country, but in many respects England is behind America, and it is still easy to see the results of the war. For beauty, Mrs. Barker said, England surpasses all of the other countries. Driving through the quaint country villages and hamlets is the ideal way to see the real beauty of England, she asserted.

The trip was a pleasure to the Santa Anans, but they are glad to be home they said, for they saw no place in all of their journey that they would trade for Orange county.

REDISTRICTING OF CITY URGED TO GIVE SOUTH END TRUSTEE

All Members of Board Live In Other Wards, Claim Of Gordon and Backers

STRIP CONNECTS NORTH AND SOUTH

Petition May Be Presented Calling for New Alignment of City Districts

That the area of Santa Ana lying south of First street is entitled to representation on the city board of trustees by having a trustee from that district, is the contention of F. S. Gordon, 1320 South Broadway. Gordon is busy today endeavoring to form a group to petition the board of city trustees to redistrict the city so that the southern end of the city may have a representative on the board.

The city is divided, at the present time, so that some part of each ward lies north of First street and all trustees live north of First street, according to Gordon.

No Criticism of Board

Gordon explains that he has no fault to find with the city governing body and has only praise for the men who are on the board of trustees, but he does believe that a representative from the large area south of First street is deserved by the people of that district. Gordon contends that nearly two-fifths of the population of Santa Ana, living in the area south of First street, is not directly represented by a city trustee.

There are five wards in Santa Ana at the present time and each of the wards is represented by a trustee, according to Gordon. He pointed out that in the case of ward No. 1, a single trustee cannot represent the entire area.

The ward, starting at Seventeenth street and Broadway, on the north, extends east to Bush street, south on Bush to Washington avenue, east on Washington avenue to French street, south on French street to Third street, west on Third street to Main, south on Main to the city limits at Delhi, west along the city limits to Bristol street, north on Bristol street to Fairview avenue, east on Fairview to Broadway and, thence, north to the starting point at Seventeenth street.

The First ward, Gordon points out, includes a narrow strip through town and takes in a large territory south of town which is rapidly building up. The representative for the ward is E. B. Collier, who lives on Washington avenue, in the north end of the ward.

Stanley Goode, representing ward No. 2, in the northeastern section of the city, also lives in the northern section of the city, according to Gordon.

Charles H. Chapman, trustee from the Third ward, is the nearest trustee to the southern district, which now wants representation. Chapman resides on the north side of East First street. George McPhee and Frank Purinton, the other two members of the city board of trustees, also live in the northern section of the city. It is understood that a number of residents of the district south of First street are aligning themselves with Gordon in a movement to bring about the redistricting of the city, so that the southern district will have a representative in the city governing body.

Political Announcement

JAMES L. ALLEN

Voluntary assurance of support are a very substantial indication of the progress a candidacy is making. Attorney James L. Allen's friends report this encouraging feature and are confident he will be one of the successful candidates for judge of the superior court at the coming primaries, Tuesday, August 31. His personal campaign, supplemented by that of many supporters, has been received favorably in all parts of the county. The fact that casual acquaintances have become active friends portend an attitude that gives hopeful encouragement to Mr. Allen's campaign. His supporters say they feel justified in urging his candidacy because of his extended professional experience, and they do not hesitate to vouch for his judicial attainments. Orange county has recently parted, through resignation, with one of the most able judges who ever honored a jurist's garment, and Allen's friends believe they are offering a candidate for this important place who will retain that high regard and at the same time bestow a public service commensurate with the requirements of the position. The voters are particularly fortunate in having such a fine field of aspirants to select from, and should Mr. Allen be chosen, his friends are confident the people will not be disappointed in the service rendered. For that reason they continue to urge his selection and report a rapidly developing constituency.

Dr. Showers of Dayton, Ohio, will preach at the U. B. church, 3rd and Shelton, Tuesday, Aug. 24, at 7:30 p. m.

PROPOSAL FOR REPEAL OF DRY ACT OPPOSED

There will then be a hundred. Turning her attention to the coming primaries, Mrs. Urquhart stressed the necessity of sending dry men to congress. In this connection, she devoted considerable time to the senate, emphasizing the necessity of concentrating the united dry vote of the entire state on one dependable dry candidate in order to avoid a repetition, in California, of the tragedy in Pennsylvania, where a divided dry vote resulted in the nomination of a wet candidate for the U. S. senate.

Coupled with this observation, she added that the California dry forces had concentrated their vote on one man, although she was not willing to disclose his name.

Right Men For Judges
She also urged the church women to exercise the greatest care in selecting the right type of men for judges. Another office that should be filled by a man in sympathy with the Volstead act is that of sheriff, she declared.

As regards the office of governor, who, as the chief executive, is charged with the enforcement of all laws, she had no recommendations to offer.

Mrs. K. F. M. Cleaves, listed on the program as "state evangelist," spoke for the measure appearing on the November ballot, allowing the Bible in the public schools. Asserting that children in California are being brought up without knowledge of God, many of them unable to say the Lord's Prayer, she urged the church women to support the measure.

Mrs. A. P. Nelson has been made chairman of the Law Enforcement committee in Orange county, affiliated with the Law Enforcement committee of 5000 in California.

EIGHT GET TICKETS ON TRAFFIC COUNTS

Eight arrests on charges of traffic law violations were made yesterday by Orange police. One of the eight, Ambrosio Ramirez, of Downey, arrested on a charge of reckless driving, was fined $50 when he appeared this morning before City Recorder Ingls, after spending the night in the city jail. The other seven arrested have five days in which to appear. Their names and charges preferred against them are as follows:

J. C. Stauffer, Los Angeles, 30 miles in 15-mile zone; William P. Canning, Moneta, 30 miles in 15-mile zone; Albert Gordon, Los Angeles, 30 miles in 15-mile zone; Earl Brothers, San Bernardino, 40 miles in 20-mile zone; August Thill, Anaheim, 21 miles in 15-mile zone; Phil Doetsch, Anaheim, 31 miles in 15-mile zone; Joseph P. Fuller, Los Angeles, 30 miles in 15-mile zone.

Stage and Screen

Florence Vidor who has leading feminine role in "You Never Know Women," current film attraction at the Yost Broadway.

Billy Dove and Francis X. Bushman in a scene from "The Marriage Clause," current attraction at the West Coast-Walker.

YOST THEATER
"The Still Alarm," current attraction at the Yost theater, is a modernized screen version of the famous old melodrama of the same name that for years thrilled millions of theater patrons. In it Universal has linked the firefighter of other days with his successor of today. Onto the screen dash the picturesque horse-drawn apparatus of the past and then with the lapse of time, 18 years, comes the powerful motorized apparatus of today. Bells clang, sirens shriek; an old-time tenement house goes up in flames and a modern one falls prey to fire. These fire scenes, with their clouds of smoke and tongues of flame, the working firemen and the endangered people, are as realistic as anything could be outside of a real fire. One almost smelled the smoke and heard the appeals of the inmates of the burning buildings and one certainly did thrill at the daring rescues.

Into the cast of this great picture Universal has placed some of the foremost men and women players of the screen, including Helen Chadwick, William Russell, Richard Travers and John T. Murray.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER
An unusual, exceptionally fine motion picture came to the Yost Broadway yesterday, when the initial presentation of "You Never Know Women," delighted a capacity audience. The story is an original by Ernest Vajda, noted Hungarian dramatist.

This production, starring Florence Vidor, may well be called "different." It combined spectacle with drama, vaudeville with liveness, and musical comedy with picturesqueness. All are logically introduced into the story's theme, centering as it does, around the principals of a Russian Variety company.

Miss Vidor and Clive Brook form the team of "Vera and Noddin," magic workers and illusionists. A romance, developed during their long partnership, hits a snag when Lowell Sherman snatches Miss Vidor from the path of a falling girder. An acquaintance ensues which ripens into apparent love.

Such well known celebrities are seen in the film as: The Russian Balalaika Orchestra, the Melford Troupe, Fortunello and Cirinelli, Louis and Freda Berkoff, and scores of dancers, acrobats and jugglers. "You Never Know Women" also marks the screen debut of an apt comedian, El Brendel.

WEST COAST-WALKER
Featured in Fanchon and Marco's "Specialty Idea" at the West Coast-Walker theater is Al Abbott—"The Village Songster in Rube Songs and Dances."

"Al Abbott proves that there are new sensations," says one New York reviewer when he appeared at the Capitol theater, New York. "He will not remain long in vaudeville but will be a success in his new productions. He has a likeable personality and his voice pleases in both talk and song, and he has plenty of ability. He does a series of characters, mostly hick, the best of these being the Village Cut-up with his little "discoordin" in the number "Have Courage, My Boy, To Say 'No'."

Thelma Morris is one of the rising young blues singers of today predicted to soon be in a class with Jane Green and Marion Harris. She has been appearing in West Coast houses and though she has a number of offers to go east, being a local Los Angeles girl she has been so greatly in demand here she has deferred leaving from time to time.

Scott and Casey, a sensational acrobatic team, is an act truly worthy of great praise. They bill themselves as "Just a Little Surprise" which is very true. They have just completed a vaudeville tour of big success.

Jerry Ryan, late star of "Irene" and former co-star with Oscar Pigma presents a song cycle as well as acting as master of ceremonies for the entire show. "The Marriage Clause," a picture starring Francis X. Bushman and Billie Dove, is showing on the West Coast-Walker screen.

THREE ARRESTED IN LIQUOR RAID

Thirty gallons of alleged beer were confiscated by Officers Howard, Adams and Fink, of the Santa Ana police, in a raid on a house at 1039 Lincoln street, Saturday night. Three arrests were made on liquor charges.

Concepcion McParra, 45, who lived in the raided house, and P. Lopez, 26, of 1016 Stafford street, are in the county jail, charged with possession of liquor, and L. Galton, 54, 1241 West Second street, found at the house, was arrested on a drunkenness charge.

The three are scheduled to appear before Judge J. F. Talbot today.

Value of Railway In State Is Fixed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The interstate commerce commission has announced the following final railroad valuation, fixed for rate-making purposes: Pacific Coast railway, California, June 30, 1926, $1,765,160.

The Pacific Coast railway is a 76-mile line running from Port San Luis, San Luis Obispo county, south to Los Olivos, Santa Barbara county. According to California railroad commission authorities, there are no cases pending which attack the present rates on the road.

H. B. Hero's Body Sent to San Diego

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 23.—The body of John Richard Turner, 43, oil worker, was shipped to San Diego today for burial by S. L. Harrell, local undertaker. Turner was drowned last Friday in a heroic attempt to save the lives of two swimmers. He is survived by a wife and three children, of 1641 Columbia street, San Diego.

Life guards dived for more than an hour before locating Turner's body, which was dragged out to sea by a rip tide. The Standard Oil company's first aid crew and the Huntington Beach pulmotor crew worked for more than two hours over the man in an effort to revive him.

IN MEMORIAM

NORRIS J. WING
In loving memory of our esteemed friend and neighbor, Norris J. Wing, I offer the following:

Mr. Wing was everyone's friend. His first thoughts were always of others. His sunny disposition and extreme unselfishness, brought happiness to all who knew him, and with this life, unfolded with strange complication of intense happiness and crashing desolated tragedy but:

Though it may break the human heart.

The dearest friends on earth must part.

All ties though noble, firm and grand, Must sever at the Lord's command.

In this sweet life that just has ended, The grandest, noblest traits were blended.

Though the body rest beneath the sod, Those traits with the spirit have gone to God!

So calm your grief and cease re- pinning, For up in heaven his soul is shining, And though your hearts are filled with pain, Remember your loss is Heaven's gain.

For God knows the way, He holds the key, And guides us with unerring hand; Sometime with tearless eye will see;

Yes, there, up there we'll understand.

MRS. JOHN McLEOD.

After sickness and when children are run down, pale and weak, nothing seems to help so much as the vitalizing vitamins in McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Mr. E. H. Alvey, pharmacist, of Clinton, Ill., writes as follows:

"Gentlemen: Enclosed find check to balance account to date. Also order for 12 dozen MCCOY'S TABLETS. My little girl (7 years old), had the measles and was very much run down. We started her on MCCOY'S and she has gained 6 pounds in thirty days. The other morning she and her mother overheard and Betty did not have time to breakfast before going to school. # NEW OIL WELLS ON PRODUCTION IN BEACH CITY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 23.—With the completion of two new wells, one for 1000 barrels a day by the Mile Petroleum Exploration company, and another for 700 barrels a day by the Julian Petroleum corporation, the new field in the west end of the city of Huntington Beach gave its first indication of what operators in that district may expect in the way of output. The new Mile well went on production at about twice the initial rate of the Jones No. 1 of the Superior Oil company, which was the first well in the field.

Both the Mile well and the Julian well came in flowing, in contrast to the initial performance of the Superior's Jones well, which came in on the pump. These two completions are the second and third wells to be completed in the new field. The Mile well came in at a depth of 3108 feet, and the Julian well at 3012 feet.

The speed of the Mile project is considered by oil men to be one of the remarkable features of its completion. The well was not started until after the Superior had brought in its Jones well. At that time there were two other wells drilling in the field, the Julian Lambert well, and the Wilshire Oil company's No. 1 well. By fast work, the Mile drillers succeeded in bringing in their well on the same day as the Julian project.

With these two wells on production, the next production is expected to be brought in either by the Standard Oil company, or by the McKee Oil company. The Standard has a couple of wells down around 3000 feet, about ready to set the water string, and the McKee No. 1 well is down about the same depth, looking for a good place to set pipe.

Completion of the Mile and Julian wells is expected to lend impetus to drilling operations at Huntington Beach, as the performance of both these wells indicates that the first to get down will get profitable production at any rate, regardless of what later arrivals may get. An initial production of from 500 to 1000 barrels a day of 20 degree gravity oil, at depths of 3000 to 3100 feet is a profitable output, particularly where the wells can be put down in 30 days' time, as is possible at Huntington Beach.

Fifty wells already are drilling or preparing to drill in the west end of the city, and the scene in that area bears a striking resemblance to the intensive operations of Los Cerritos and Signal Hill. Wells are going down on leases comprising only two lots, which is barely sufficient ground for the construction of a derrick and boiler house.

CAPISTRANO SCHOOL BELLS CALL PUPILS

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Aug. 23.—School bells rang out this morning for 150 youngsters of this vicinity who, with hair slicked back and stiffly starched blouses covering well scrubbed skin, reluctantly swung a bundle of books over their shoulders and strode up the steps of the local grammar school to begin the fall semester.

For three weeks the pupils will toil with the problems of education. Then, a three weeks' period of vacation will intervene while many go to work in the walnut orchards.

Because of the great number of students enrolled in the school who are sons and daughters of walnut pickers, it is necessary to make arrangements for them in the program of the school year, according to school officials. Thus, the school closes during the walnut picking season and starts three weeks early to accommodate them.

The first grade, with 35 beginners, convened in the building formerly used as the Woman's clubhouse and before that as the high school. Two new teachers, Miss Pickard and Miss Nelson, assumed their duties today.

The high school will open September 13.

According to the report, Larson endeavored to pass a car, found there was not room and swung into the rear end of the car, which was driven by Don Campbell, 213 Sixteenth street, Huntington Beach. Larson's car then plunged off the road and down a sharp bank.

Larson was brought to the Emergency hospital here. He was removed to Long Beach Sunday.

MARSHY GROUND HAMPERS OIL WORK

SEAL BEACH, Aug. 23.—Drilling conditions, or rather building conditions of unusual difficulty, are being found by the Marfield Oil company and Standard Oil company in their operations in the Seal Beach field, just east of the city of Long Beach, according to field reports.

Due to the marshy condition of the ground in that district, ordinary roads will not suffice for the transportation of heavy rig timbers, and oil well drilling machinery, and corduroy roads, constructed of timbers laid lengthwise across the roadway, are necessary.

For the same reason, the ground is too soft to permit of the usual type of derrick foundations, and the construction crews find it necessary to make a foundation of heavy piles driven into the ground.

Consequently the six wells which have been started on the San Gabriel River Development company's property and the Selover and McGrath property by the Standard and Marfield are still in the early stages of preliminary derrick construction. As soon as the piling foundations are completed, which company officials expect to be within the next few days, the work of building the derricks will go forward quickly.

Mrs. Bruce Stocton visited Mrs. Henry Boosey Thursday afternoon.

ELECTRICITY TO BE UTILIZED IN 2 OLINDA WELLS

OLINDA, Aug. 23.—Plans for using electricity to drive two new wells to be drilled by the Chaslor Canfield Midway Oil company in the Richfield pool are announced. The wells are Richfield No. 5, a steel rig, and Richfield No. 6, a wooden derrick, both on the narrow lease along the Santa Fe right-of-way on its Olinda branch line from Atwood to Olinda. The lease parallels the track about two blocks north of Atwood.

Both derricks are on the ground, the steel rig being rigged up. On the No. 5 well, the Hild differential drive, a new piece of equipment, will be part of this well. All pumps and the drilling table will be driven by electric motors, similar to the one used in sinking the world's deepest well at Olinda.

The Santa Fe has had the Richfield lease for years, having two top sand pumps on it at present. The new wells will be the first work done in the Richfield pool by this company in several years, and will be the first to be electrically driven.

Olinda No. 36, the world's deepest well, is tied up temporarily on a fishing job at 7936 feet. It is hoped to sink the hole to 8000 feet before a stop is made.

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is our highest building.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in one year could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building with enough left over to extend from Lynn, Mass., to Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have lots of work to do and I am not very strong, but I was getting worse all the time until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used to lose my appetite completely at certain times, but I feel very well since I began taking this medicine. I think so much of it that I would go before a notary and swear to its merits. You could step into my home any time and you will find a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

STECHER RISKS MAT TITLE IN GO WEDNESDAY

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—Through the fog and smoke of challenges, counter challenges, denials, confirmations and what nots of the proposed meeting of Joe Stecher and Ed ("Strangler") Lewis for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, one thing stands out. The outstanding item is the fact that regardless of whether or not Stecher is in the same ring at the same time—Stecher is to meet John Pesek, Nebraska "tigerman," in the Olympic auditorium this week.

That a championship match should be signed without taking cognizance of Pesek is more or less ridiculous for Pesek is granted an excellent chance to overcome Stecher in their Wednesday night bout. Pesek's chances appear so good at the present time that the solons of the betting fraternity are taking nothing but even money on the outcome of the contest.

Of course Stecher defeated Pesek last April in St. Louis but his victory came after five gruelling hours and then only when Pesek slipped and fell through the ropes and was knocked unconscious when his head hit the floor outside the ring.

An item in Pesek's favor that can not be disregarded is the narrowness of his waist. Stecher is famed for his ability with the body scissors and it is an admitted fact that the body scissors is not especially effective on slim persons.

On Stecher's side of the fence is the old axiom "A good big man can beat a good little man" and while Pesek hardly classifies as a little man it is true that he scales some 22 pounds less than Stecher. Another antiquated axiom that falls with Stecher is "String with the champ and you can only lose once."

WASHINGTON ELEVEN WILL BE DANGEROUS

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23.—While the University of Washington football team probably will not boast of any outstanding talent this year, it will give the other conference teams a battle.

That's what Enoch Bagshaw, coach, thinks of the Huskies' chances from their appearance at the present time.

The team will start the season with experienced men in the line, but with a weakened backfield. Last year the line men came under the category of "green material."

Through graduation the team has lost Wilson and Tesrau from the backfield and Erickson from the line. Their loss is going to be keenly felt.

"It doesn't look so bad and it doesn't look so good, either," Bagshaw said. "The team's success depends on whether the men I count on to return to the university develop as they should. But in any event we will have a team that will give the other fellows a battle."

This year's renewal of the Grand Union hotel stakes at Saratoga marks the silver jubilee of this popular race for two-year-olds over the six-furlong course. The event was inaugurated in 1901 and the first winner was William C. Whitney's King Hanover.

TUNNEY GAINS SUCCESS AS BOXER-SOLDIER

GENE TUNNEY
AS A MARINE
DURING THE WORLD WAR

TUNNEY, TODAY

BILLY ROCHE, WHO LAUNCHED TUNNEY ON HIS PROFESSIONAL CAREER

By JOE WILLIAMS
(Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)
Over in France Gene Tunney was a success both as a fighting soldier and a soldier fighter. He saw action at Belleau Wood, and in the less tempestuous phases of the expedition, he saw action in the Paris prize rings.

When the A. E. F. athletic carnival was arranged at Pershing stadium, Tunney was selected to represent his outfit in the light-heavyweight division. This selection was not altogether pleasing to him.

"I wasn't yet sold on myself as a fighter with the gloves," Tunney admits. "I wasn't particularly keen about going down there and getting mugged around and making my outfit look bad."

Tunney was turned over to Mike O'Dowd for training and handling. Mike was the middleweight champion of the world at the time and was one of those hard-boiled, plug-cut masticators who "ain't got no use for the swells now."

Just a "Swell!"
To O'Dowd, Tunney was a "swell." Didn't he wash his teeth twice a day? Didn't he use powder after shaving? Didn't he read poetry? Didn't he talk about such snappy things as tariff and congress? And worst of all, didn't he say "absolutely, Michael?"

Huh! Imagine that. "Absolutely, Michael!" Why couldn't he be human and say, "Sure Mike!"

Well Mike and Tunney didn't get along for more than a day or so. "You train yourself," growled Mike. "The pleasure will be all mine, Michael," responded Tunney. So the two went their respective ways. Tunney proceeded to train and condition himself in the manner he thought best. Before the A. E. F. carnival proper got under way Tunney was matched with Bob Martin, a husky West Virginia youth, in Paris. Tunney got the decision.

This victory made Tunney, although weighing only 166 pounds, the outstanding favorite among the big fellows in the soldier championships and there is little doubt that he would have won the heavyweight honors had he been permitted to fight in that division.

He Whipped Jamieson
But the regulations of the tournament restricted his activities to the light-heavyweight division. Tunney had no trouble winning this title. His victim in the finals was Ted Jamieson. Meanwhile Martin went out to win the heavyweight title.

Passing years have established Tunney as the best fighter developed in the service. The best by far.

Martin returned from overseas with an energetic ballyhooper in the person of Jimmy Bronson, who "circused" him from one end of the country to the other.

Bronson was instrumental in launching a vigorous campaign against Jack Dempsey on grounds of slackerism, the purpose of which was to crush Dempsey in public esteem and automatically elevate Martin, with his war record, to a commanding position among the heavyweights.

They Made Money
Martin enjoyed a limited vogue. He had a fine right-hand punch and was game. Bronson made plenty of money for and with him. Martin's most impressive gesture was made in the old Madison Square Garden the night he fought and whipped Bill Brennan. The records do not show that he won the decision but he whipped him just the same.

That was the soldier champion's finest bid for glory in the ring. It was just about his last, too. He never fought a good fight after that. Some months later he was temporarily blinded by Fay Keiser at Baltimore, and was unable to leave his hotel for a week.

Eventually Bronson persuaded him to retire. For a while he was a state ranger patrolling the mountain passes of his native Virginia. While Martin was building up a $100,000 bank roll (which he later frittered away, incidentally) Tunney, the man who had whipped him in Paris, was pounding the streets of New York looking for a job.

"I didn't want to be a fighter," explains Tunney. "I wanted to go into business. I was willing to take my old job back and at the same money. Willing? Say, I was eager!"

Meets Billy Roche
But Tunney's experiences in this regard were not unlike those of many other young men who had gone into the big fuss. It wasn't so easy to get the old job back. Indeed, it wasn't so easy to get any sort of a job.

"One day I bumped into Billy Roche, the veteran referee," relates Tunney. "I had just finished scanning the want ads in the Times and was getting ready to make my daily tour of offices and factories."

"Roche had been overseas as a physical director and had seen me fight. You're just the guy I'm looking for," chirped Billy. "I've got a fight for you and there's 100 berries in it."

(This is the second of a series of articles by Joe Williams, staff writer of NEA Service, Inc., dealing with the life story of Gene Tunney, challenger for the heavyweight title. —Sport Editor's note.)

PIPING 'EM OFF
The Cleveland Indians climbed nearly two full games ahead of the Athletics into a more secure second place by taking both ends of a double header from the Senators, 10 to 2 and 5 to 0.

Although the St. Louis Cardinals beat the New York Giants, 4 to 2, and they are still a fractional point behind the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League, the Buccaneers were idle.

Taking two games that went into the extra innings, the Cincinnati Reds clearly swept their series with the Braves. The Reds took the first, 4 to 3, in 10 innings and the second, 7 to 6, in 12 frames.

Missing hits for runs in the eighth, the Chicago Cubs beat Brooklyn, 3 to 2.

BILLY EVANS Says

TWO BIG FINDS
Not many ball players of Italian birth have been numbered among the major league stars.

The season of 1926 promises to be a decided exception, for two of the biggest finds of the year are Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees and Oscar Melillo of the St. Louis Browns.

Lazzeri rivals Ruth as the most popular ball player in New York, while no member of the St. Louis Browns is in stronger with the fans of that city than Melillo.

In the right field status at St. Louis there are several hundred Italian fans every day who pay homage to the deeds of Melillo. He is a big favorite with them, for he has performed sensationally in the field and lived up to expectations at the bat.

Recently he received a letter from one of the more prominent Italian fans that the right field boys had a present for him, but there was nothing doing on the presentation stuff at the home plate. If he wanted the gift he would have to walk out to the right field stands and get it.

AN ODD CEREMONY
I happened to be officiating in St. Louis on the day of the presentation. Shortly before the game began the speaker of the occasion loudly yelled Melillo's name, at the same time waved a small traveling bag in the air to acquaint Oscar with the nature of the gift.

In company with a number of the St. Louis players Melillo marched

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Talk among the major league baseball players about some kind of protective organization or union probably will be revived this winter because of the recent experience of Max Carey and Frank Frisch.

Carey, rated as one of the most valuable players in the game last season, lost his job with the Pittsburgh Pirates and was released away from a cut of the world's series money with a transfer to the Brooklyn club.

Frisch, in open rebellion against the managerial tactics of John McGraw, was back at his home here today debating what move he could make next. He left the Giants in St. Louis without warning and probably will lose a lot of pay and his job.

The former captain of the Giants said that he was not certain what he could do and that he was going to stay around home for a while. He said he was in bad physical shape and needed a rest.

In the opinion of ball players and fans, who are familiar with the contracts that players have to sign, there is nothing that Frisch can do. He made the first move and will have to make the next and just grow moving any way against McGraw.

It invariably got a laugh and relieved the tenseness of the situation.

SODA-JERKERS ONLY UNBEATEN TEAM IN RACE

Fluors, Excelsiors Clash Tonight; Blauers Meet O'Donnells Tomorrow

Although the teams have completed only two rounds of their 10-week pennant campaign, but one organization—Lee's Fountain—has a clear record in the Santa Ana Indoor Baseball league which begins its third week at Lincoln field tonight.

The Soda-Jerkers hold decisions over the Fluor Construction company and the O'Donnell Motor company. This week the league leaders face the Santa Ana Lumber company.

All of the other aggregations, except the O'Donnells who have yet to break into the victory column, hold a 500 percentage, with one win and one defeat.

Fluors Face Excelsiors
One of the best games of the season should develop this evening when the Fluors tangle with the Excelsiors. Pete Fluor, skipper of the Constructionists, has assembled the most formidable looking crew in the race. His team has batting dynamite from the top of the batting order to the last man in the ranks and it will be a tough one to keep from making a runaway race to the championship.

The Excelsiors are capable of playing fine baseball. They have a "murderer's row" of their own and one of the best battery combinations in the city in "Tex" Bergman and Luther Babcock.

"Shorty" O'Donnell Motors outfit against the Blauers, city champions, tomorrow night. The Lee Fountain-Santa Ana Lumber company set to will wind up the week's city league schedule Wednesday.

All-Stars Play Thursday
Either Ontario or Long Beach will oppose the Santa Ana All-Stars here Thursday night, it is understood. The game has not been definitely closed but it is known that both of the outsiders are willing to appear here.

The Orange County Indoor Baseball league will complete its schedule Friday night. The league-leading Santa Ana American Legionnaires face Laguna Beach at Lincoln park while the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce goes to Anaheim to face Jimmy Heffron's Mother Colonists. A victory will clinch the flag for the Legionnaires. A defeat for the World War vets and a win for the Chamber of Commerce would leave the two local clubs tied for first place.

L. A. PRODUCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Stocks closed about 100 points higher today, with a strong rally in the market. The opening gong, throwing the market on the market in large blocks in the morning, was followed by a steady advance in the general list.

But these offerings were absorbed with an ease which indicated powerful buying and the stock was arrested after steel had been forced down to the low level of last week's reaction at 14 1/2.

When the floor crowd found they were unable to penetrate the recent high of resistance, they turned their operations to the long side; helping along the rally which appeared to be primarily a reaction to the resumption of operations by constructive interests.

General Motors moved ahead with a vigor which characterized its upswing previous to the recent declaration of a 5 percent stock dividend. The stock advanced to 17 1/2, with a high of 18 1/2.

Grandmother of Modern Times Is Rather Different

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A one day's search by a London newspaper for the old-fashioned grandmother who usually is pictured as sitting quietly darning socks by the fireside, failed completely.

The inquirer compiled a list of seven grandmothers, and set out to find out what they were doing.

No. 1 was in Paris buying frocks. No. 2 had recently acquired a two-seater sports automobile and had driven up into the Midlands to see her son's sons.

No. 3 had gone into the country to make a political speech in her son's constituency.

No. 4 had gone to a matinee. No. 5 was out buying some new valises for the radio set.

No. 6 was out getting her hair shingled.

No. 7 had gone to a tea daisant at a big hotel.

It is pointed out that the unanimity of French public opinion has given way to a division of views on French security, and that French military opinion still sees security in larger international treaties than in the retention of French troops on German soil.

At the same time, France's financial problems are urgently demanding rapid measures of co-operation between Germany and France. The future will show whether those who perceive the necessity for Franco-German co-operation will be strong enough to overcome the intervening obstacles and attain what will depend upon the relations between Germany and France.

GERMAN POLICY SINCE LOCARNO GIVEN DEFENSE

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—The Hamburg Fremdenblatt, which is known to stand in close relations with the Foreign Office, has published an article entitled, "The Foreign Policy of Germany Since Locarno," which it has received from a "special diplomatic source."

In this the German policy since Locarno is defended and the prospects of Germany's cooperation after her adoption into the league in September are surveyed.

It is pointed out that the unanimity of French public opinion has given way to a division of views on French security, and that French military opinion still sees security in larger international treaties than in the retention of French troops on German soil.

Germany Profits

After referring to the slackening of tension in Europe following upon Locarno, the article goes on to mention some of the benefits derived by Germany from it, such as the evacuation of Cologne and the air route to London.

It is pointed out that the unanimity of French public opinion has given way to a division of views on French security, and that French military opinion still sees security in larger international treaties than in the retention of French troops on German soil.

At the same time, France's financial problems are urgently demanding rapid measures of co-operation between Germany and France. The future will show whether those who perceive the necessity for Franco-German co-operation will be strong enough to overcome the intervening obstacles and attain what will depend upon the relations between Germany and France.

GOVERNOR RICHARDSON FACTS

The publication by the Governor's publicity bureau of alleged "Boulder Dam Facts" suggests the pertinence of publishing some provable and proved "Governor Richardson Facts."

The Governor is "pointing with pride" to the fact—if it is a fact—that there is a surplus in the state treasury of over $15,000,000. This alleged fact is offered over and over again, not only by the Governor's publicity bureau and newspaper supporters, but also by the Governor himself, in public speeches, as evidence of his economical administration.

This surplus claim started at $10,000,000 in an editorial in the Orange News, which was reprinted in the Register of July 15, and according to the Los Angeles Times of Saturday, August 21, it has grown in a little over one month to $15,727,000. The Times double column head says Governor Richardson "Told Southern California Editors How Economy in Office Has 'Saved' $15,727,000." In the lead of the Times' article the statement is made that Governor Richardson "Revealed *** that he has created a 'surplus' in state funds of $15,727,000—the largest surplus in the history of California."

But the Governor and his supporters fail to state the important contradictory fact that over $11,000,000 of this so-called surplus was created by the unexpected and unbudgeted payment of railroad taxes belonging to the revenues of former years—years not included in the Richardson gubernatorial incumbency. They fail to state that the balance of the alleged surplus might more accurately be credited to over-taxation than to Richardson's economical administration.

And is it a fact that there is a surplus of $15,000,000 in the state treasury?

State Controller Ray Riley, acclaimed by everybody as an exceptionally accurate and careful accountant, says there is no such surplus.

A way back in March of this year, when there was no gubernatorial claim of a surplus of $15,000,000, when no political controversy as to surplus was under way, just in the ordinary course of business, inquiry was made by Orange County officials as to the condition of state funds. In reply to this inquiry State Controller Ray Riley, under date of March 31, 1926, wrote as follows:

Due to necessary estimating of general fund items, and refunds from one fund to another in the Highway commission, figures are not exact, but estimated.

General Fund surplus for this biennium, to June 30, 1927, $6,000,000. This amount contemplates the expenditure of $5,542,000 from the General Fund for highway construction, as appropriated in the budget bill. If this is not expended, the surplus will be increased by that amount. None of this surplus is available for highway construction without the imminent probability of increased taxation for general purposes.

No surplus is accruing, and expenditures are increasing more rapidly than receipts. This biennium will just break even, if the five million mentioned above is not used by the Highway Commission.

Governor Richardson says he stands on his record, that he has made good his promise of an economical administration. But he hardly goes so far as to claim that he has made good his pre-election promise to save the taxpayers of the state $15,000,000—unless he means to claim that he has saved that alleged $15,000,000 surplus.

What Governor Richardson meant by his pre-election pledge—at least what he meant the voters to think he meant—was that he would run the state's business for four years for $15,000,000 less than it had cost under his competitor and predecessor, Governor Stephens. He and his supporters talked and talked and talked of how extravagant Stephens' administration had been and how economical Richardson's would be. And they won on that issue.

But the fact is that the four years of the Richardson administration, when completed, will have cost more than the preceding eight years. The four years immediately preceding Richardson cost $195,000,000; Richardson's four years, when complete, will have cost $316,000,000.

This is the testimony of official reports of the state treasurer, of the state controller and of federal compilations of state revenues and expenditures. Neither Governor Richardson nor any of his supporters attempts to deny the figures of these reports, which have been quoted all over the state by Lieutenant-Governor Young and his supporters. But they go right on claiming that the Richardson administration has made good its pledge of economy.

Now for the real "Boulder Dam Facts."

Governor Richardson says he favors the Colorado river development. He does not say he favors the Swing-Johnson Boulder Dam All-American Canal bill, which has the approval of President Coolidge, Secretary Work, Secretary Hoover, and the Senate committee on rivers and harbors, and which has the opposition of Harry Chandler and the Los Angeles Times, and which is the only hope of Colorado river development (which the Governor says he favors) within the next ten years.

That the Governor has not supported and does not favor the Swing-Johnson bill seems to be established as an important and real "Boulder Dam Fact" by his own tacit admission. But we have more positive evidence of such non-support and disfavor in the positive statements to that effect by the co-authors of the bill, Congressman Phil Swing and Senator Hiram Johnson, and by former State Senator William J. Carr of Pasadena, who represented the cities of Pasadena and Los Angeles and the Colorado River Aqueduct association at all the hearings on the bill in Washington.

All of these men say positively and unequivocally that while the other Colorado river states were ably represented at all of the hearings, either by their respective governors or some representative of the executive, California alone was never so represented at any of the hearings.

Governor Richardson says he has had State Engineer Paul Bailey at work for a long time on "Colorado River Development," and that Bailey has discovered a better route for the aqueduct than the route tentatively selected by William Mulholland, chief engineer of the Los Angeles Water and Power board. But when Mulholland and H. A. Van Norman, engineer for the Los Angeles aqueduct, asked to be shown, State Engineer Bailey said he had made no survey, but on looking at a contour map it had seemed to him that a new route was feasible.

Many other "Governor Richardson Facts" might be presented, but as the judge told the lawyer—Well, the lawyer said he had ten reasons to present why his client was not in court, the first being that he was dead. "That is sufficient" said the judge.

Finally, let it be said in all sincerity that The Register does not wish to be understood as making a personal fight on Governor Richardson. It has no such desire or intention, either in mind or in heart. But it is violently at war with his philosophy of government and his theory of economics. It is unalterably at variance with his interpretation of economy as applied in his administration, and utterly repudiates his idea of what constitutes support of "Colorado river development."

In Need of Real Leadership

San Bernardino Sun

Should Southern California ever decide to do anything politically in Southern California, then look out. The registration figures have been very enlightening.

Southern California has not decided to do anything this election, perhaps largely because Los Angeles originally thought it could do it alone and has discovered too late that it needs more than Los Angeles.

Approximately half of the registered voters in the 58 counties of California are in 10 southern counties. This is the way the figures look:

Los Angeles	661,444
San Diego	67,112
Orange	40,506
San Bernardino	38,238

The rest of the state is not such a compact unit as the Southern California counties.

The political sun of Southern California will rise on that day when Los Angeles decides to provide a true Southland leadership rather than a mere Los Angeles leadership. Some day, however, the great community interests of Los Angeles will consult carefully and thoroughly with the other counties of the southland, adopt a generous attitude toward its neighbors and seek an honest agreement for united action on policies of importance to all of Southern California.

When that day arrives Southern California will step out and do things.

There are three counties in Southern California which have on various occasions united for a common cause. These are the counties of Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside, with a registered vote of approximately 100,000. This is nearly half the strength of San Francisco, the second largest voting unit in the state. Pending developments of an honest Southern California leadership San Bernardino, Orange and Riverside counties might very well continue and make more workable their alliance.

Fresno Republican

James O'Neal, editor of a Socialist paper, has an article in the August Current History, that discusses the party's present status. His report is very much like that of the director of the American Civil Liberties Union.

As a political effort the party is "marking time." All recent efforts to coalesce or to promote new liberal parties, Baldwin notes, have been failures. The Communists are still anxious to get standing in America by securing a merger with the Socialists, but on terms which the Socialists always reject. There are only about 10,000 dues paying Socialists in the United States, while a newly established national newspaper has a circulation of about 15,000. The whole Socialist party outlook is reported to be very gloomy. There seems to be no "appeal" that can be made that will get votes or money.

This Socialist writer makes a point about the character of Communist political practice that fits in exactly with the reasons for the refusal of the United States government, under Wilson, Harding and Coolidge, to "recognize" the Soviet government of Russia. He says:

"The reason for this rejection of merger proposals made by the Communists to the Socialists, is that the Socialist and Communist parties of the world fundamentally differ in aims as well as policies. Moreover the Socialists contend that in those countries where the 'united front' has been accepted it has been followed by bad faith on the part of the Communist organizations in that they carry on persistent warfare against those who accept their proffered co-operation."

CITIES CAN AID IN WAR AGAINST HAY FEVER
(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles on hay fever.)

As has been shown, hay fever in various parts of the United States is due to the plants pollinating in those portions and may be relieved by determination of the specific plant, and in some instances by desensitization of the patient.

In many large cities attempts are now being made to relieve hay fever by systematically cleaning out all vacant lots in which there are weeds that pollinate.

A survey was made in Chicago and New Orleans as to the vacant lots and the weeds present upon them. The cleaning out of such weeds, resulted in the elimination of much hay fever.

Persons with hay fever and asthma will probably do well to keep their windows closed while asleep to keep out as much of the pollen as possible. Naturally persons with hay fever suffer unusually severely with nasal conditions and are anxious to avoid colds. This they should do by seeing that they are kept properly warm and dry, and not too greatly exposed to the weather. Over-exercise with perspiration and rapid cooling may make the condition much more severe.

Hot, dry, or sultry days should not necessarily affect hay fever symptoms, but if the tissues of the nose are dried out, reactions seem more severe. Following a rain, patients sometimes feel better, usually due to the fact that pollen has been brought down to the ground so that they do not fly in the air, and also by elimination of dust which acts as an added irritant.

Misunderstandings Grow

San Francisco Chronicle

The incident of the American diplomatic attache who was doused with cold water by a crowd in Japan shows how easy it is for people to come close to serious trouble when they speak different languages and think differently. It is easy to understand that a diplomat given the cold water treatment might think war had been declared, or ought to be. And no doubt a formal complaint was proper to uphold official dignity that seemed to have been affronted deliberately.

But the explanation shows that the cold water bath was not intended for an American diplomat. He got it just because he happened to be there. Any other stranger would have been treated the same because the crowd was praying for rain and part of the ceremony was to throw water on the first passing stranger.

Things quite as innocent have caused serious troubles. There was more than one Indian uprising because the settlers and the red men did not understand each other. And some years ago the Turkish government made serious and formal complaint that a secretary of legation had been attacked by an assassin.

Investigation proved that the "assassin" was a 12-year-old boy, who could not resist the temptation to throw a snowball at a red fez passing the school yard during recess. And when the boy had been suspended and had written a letter of apology, giving assurance that he did not hate the Sultan, the friendship of the two nations was resumed.

A great many international crises result from nothing more serious than such misunderstandings.

THIRTY-FOUR EDITORS ON RICHARDSON LIST

San Bernardino Sun.—There are frequent references to the Richardson newspaper committee, which is directing the campaign for the governor's re-election, but it remained for the Santa Barbara Press to compile the roster of editors who hold appointments from the governor, with the implication that there is a reason why the "newspaper committee" is so diligent in its campaigning.

There are 34 editors who hold state commissions from the governor, according to the count of the Santa Barbara Press, and the full list follows:

F. W. Atkinson, Watsonville Register, Redwood park commission.

John Baker, Holtville Tribune, supervisor Imperial county.

Will F. Blake, Gilroy Advocate, board members Agnews hospital.

H. R. Braden, Braden Printery, board of control.

M. F. Cochrane, San Rafael Independent, state harbor board.

Justus Craemer, Orange News, state board of agriculture.

E. A. Dickson, Los Angeles Express, regent University of California.

C. O. Dunbar, Santa Rosa Press-Democrat, Sonoma state home board.

A. E. Falch, Los Gatos Mail-News, state building and loan commission.

B. A. Forrester, Oakland Tribune, member Veterans' home board.

J. R. Gabbert, Riverside Enterprise, real estate commissioner.

J. O. Hays, San Jose Mercury-Herald, regent University of California.

Mrs. Henry M. Hastings, Oakland, member state board of education.

J. E. King, Hemet News, state printer.

Harvey Johnson, Banning Record, supervisor Riverside county.

Oran A. King, Jackson Ledger, deputy real estate commissioner.

Mrs. Oran A. King, Jackson Ledger, member state welfare board.

Harry Lutgens, Sebastopol Times, governor's private secretary.

W. F. Nixon, Woodland Mail, secretary highway commission.

William F. Marsh, Roseville Tribune, superintendent motor vehicle department.

S. D. Merk, Burlingame Advance, member state board of education.

H. L. Moody, Redding Searchlight, supervisor Shasta county.

Fred McPherson, Santa Cruz Sentinel, Redwood park commissioner.

R. M. Norton, Richmond, state notary for San Francisco.

Florence J. O'Brien, Chico Enterprise, member state board of education.

J. E. Olmsted, Petaluma Argus, member state accident commission.

J. L. Phelps, Stockton Independent, secretary state harbor board.

D. J. Reese, Ventura Free Press, civil service commissioner.

George H. Rhodes, former Mendocino county publisher, member state board of forestry.

George G. Radloff, Watsonville Pajaronian, member board of control.

C. A. Stokes, Santa Barbara News, member board of education.

J. B. Sanford, Ukiah Dispatch-Democrat, state harbor board.

W. A. Shepard, Auburn Herald, Nevada exposition commission.

W. A. Ratcliff, former Tulare publisher, secretary state accident commission.

In any event it cannot be said that newspaper editors are ungrateful.

Teague Again Endorses Clarke

Charles C. Teague, manager of the Coolidge campaign in Southern California two years ago, and President of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange and California Walnut association, from his home at Santa Paula has issued another endorsement of the candidacy of Robert M. Clarke for the Republican nomination for United States senator. Mr. Teague's endorsement is as follows:

"He came from one of the early pioneer families. Circumstances were such that he had to work hard as a boy, which habit has followed him through life. He is entirely self-educated and self-made, the type of a man that has made America what she is. He has always, even as a boy, taken a great interest in political history and political economy, and wanted to have a part in the running of this great government of ours. His temperament, ability and experience pre-eminently fit him to do so."

"He is honest, upright and courageous; a thorough Republican; a great believer in the Republican protective tariff policy; and a great admirer of Calvin Coolidge."

"He is the type of man that we should delight to elect to public office—that too often we do not have opportunity of voting for."

It will be remembered that Teague had charge of the tariff contest for the fruit growers and spent nearly a year in Washington in 1921-1922 and was instrumental in securing the splendid duties for California industry and agriculture.

Richardson Economy

The following was issued from the campaign headquarters of Rex B. Goodrich, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor: "Taxpayers of California are still awaiting an explanation from Governor Richardson as to his failure to carry out the pledge made four years ago to 'save taxpayers $115,000,000 in four years.'"

"As already shown in these columns the cost of the state government in the four years he has been at the helm has shown an increase of $121,000,000 over the Stephens administration instead of the saving of $115,000,000."

HOW ABOUT IT, MR. GOVERNOR?

"In the Los Angeles Times of August 27, 1922, Candidate F. W. Richardson is quoted as saying: 'I guarantee to save taxpayers $115,000,000 in four years.'"

"This I will do, without crippling a single humanitarian function and without deducting a single dollar from education funds."

"Mr. Harry Chandler's Los Angeles Times has failed to publish the fact that Governor Richardson failed to make good on that promise and that his administration has cost $121,000,000 more than the four years under Stephens."

Wood For Young

The following endorsement, by Will C. Wood, superintendent of public instruction in California, of the gubernatorial candidacy of C. C. Young was given out today by the Young campaign committee, with headquarters in the Helburn building, Fourth and Main streets:

"The hope of defeating Governor Richardson and terminating his blundering rule in California lies in the concentration of support on one opposing candidate. Where the issues at stake are so vital as they are in this campaign, voters who believe in progressive government should lay aside all considerations except those of principle and the possibility of victory. The only hope of the Richardson forces in the present campaign lies in a divided field, which the governor and his henchmen have assiduously cultivated. A single opponent would defeat the present governor overwhelmingly."

"The friends of progressive government can blast the last hope of the Richardson coterie by concentrating their support behind the strongest opposing candidate. After a thorough canvass of the situation in California, I am of the opinion that Lieutenant-Governor C. C. Young is by all odds the strongest opponent of Governor Richardson."

"I say this without desire to disparage the candidacy of any other person. I am also convinced after years of association with Mr. Young, that his principles are genuinely progressive. His record shows that he will apply those principles in California government if he is chosen governor of the state."

"Mr. Young has always been, and is now, a strong proponent of education, a loyal alumnus of the University of California, a friend of the state's colleges and of the public schools generally. With C. C. Young as governor, the people of California will not be humiliated by the injection of petty ward politics into teachers' college appointments, as they have been by the Richardson administration."

"I therefore ask all friends of progressive government, and of education to rally to the support of Lieutenant-Governor C. C. Young to insure his nomination for governor of California at the August primary."

POLITICS IN SCHOOLS

San Bernardino Sun.—Because they are "not in accord" with the Richardson administration, William J. Cooper and A. B. Anderson have been refused confirmation of their appointments as presidents of state teachers' colleges. The refusal to confirm was voted by the Richardson appointees on the state board of education.

For the first time in the history of the state political alliance to the governor is now necessary to secure recognition within the state school system.

The appointments were made by Will C. Wood, head of the state school system. He is an official elected by the people. Under the law his appointments must be confirmed by the state board of education, now composed almost exclusively of newspaper editors. The members of this board are appointed by the governor.

The only refreshing part in this new squabble that is certain to become an important issue in the present campaign is the frankness of the state board of education. It has declared without reserve that the reasons for the refusal of confirmation are political reasons alone.

Here we have it, administration politics riding rough-shod through the state school system. During the almost entire history of the California state school system there has been little effort of state administrations to eject politics into its operations. Teachers and instructors have been free to enjoy such political beliefs as they elected. This was certainly as it should be. Now the board of the school system, admittedly partisan educators, have been denied promotion to which they are entitled merely because of politics. The average person will be able to find little justification for the situation. To say that head of a teachers' college must view things politically in the same light as the governor of the state is preposterous. The president of a state teachers' college is not a part of the governor's administration. The conduct of the state school system is certainly not charged to the governor of California, for the schools are almost entirely divorced from control of political agencies.

The refusal of the governor's appointees on the state board of education to confirm appointments of the superintendent of public instruction, an elective official, is certainly the swinging of the political axe. The only move there can be in the action is to make a demonstration to all holders of public office, who can be reached in any manner by the governor, that they dare not disagree with the governor.

Governor Richardson stands with a saint like posture and informs the people of California that he has no political organization. The demonstration at San Francisco indicates that his organization is performing as few political associations have dared to perform in the past.

The governor has started it, but it is safe to guess that the friends of the school system of California will finish it.

Walter Johnson of Olinda broke the American league pitching record when he won his fifteenth consecutive victory.

After a conference between County Assessor Sleeper and members of the board of supervisors it was announced that the county's tax rate for the coming year will be the same as last year, $1.10 inside cities and $1.50 outside cities.
